Taxes Consume Nearly One-Third of Average Dollar Spent for Gasoline

Twenty-nine cents of every dollar the average motorist spent for gasoline in 1932 went to pay State and Federal taxes! These levies reduced approximately by one-third the gasoline purchasing power of the dollar. Money with which the motorist could have bought a fourth gallon, went to pay taxes on the first three. A car travelling 10 miles per gallon, went only 75 miles instead of 100 to
