Richard Harder Scout Master

The Boy Scout movement is getting off to a good start with the organization of an official scout troop in Andover within a very short time assured.

Last Friday evening a citizens' meeting was called at Legion Hall which elected a troop committee consisting of P. D. Perrone, John E. Vincent, G. W. Folwell, R. O. Snyder, C. H. Watson, R. O. Burgett and C. C. Backus. This committee is to make all necessary arrangements for the starting of the troop, such as executing and filling of the application for a charter, appointing a Scout master and an assessment and to have the general supervision of the troop after it is formed and going.

The troop committee, at a meeting held Wednesday evening, appointed Richard Harder as Scout Master and Frederick C. Mulholland as first assistant Scout Master for the troop. Applications for membership were received from 25 boys and machinery set up to start the project rolling immediately.

Two Divorces Granted

Spring

The following fine verse was written by Vincent McAndrew, a pupil in Miss Emma Folsing's school. Vincent is but 12 years of age:

When morning comes in early spring I love to hear the birds sing.

They fly around to build their nests,

To lay their eggs where they think best.

Some build nests upon the ground, And fly away if people come 'round. Children at school set a certain day

To look for birds and have a play. One day I found a birdies nest, And on it set a bird at rest.

It was woven fine with threads of hair, And in it lay four birds, all bare.

Not one of them had on a feather, There they lay all cuddled together.

I said to myself "How funny it would look, To have their pictures in a book."

Births
