Roosevelt's Peace Policy

Washington, D. C., May 16. The text of President Roosevelt's message to the wood street. May 30th. Kindly bring them to the Village heads of the nations participating in the world economic Their home will be open on the

> A profound hope of the people of my country impels me, as the head of their Government, to address you and, thru you, the people of your nation. This hope is that peace may be assured thru practical measures of disarmament and that all of us may carry to victory our common struggle against economic chaos.

To these ends, the nations have called two great world conferences. The happiness, the presperity, and the very lives of the men, women and children who inhabit the whole world are bound up in the decisions which their governments will make in the near future. The improvement of social conditions, the preservation of individual human rights, and the furtherance of social justice are dependent upon these decisions.

The World Economic Conference will meet soon and must come to its conclusions quickly. The world cannot await deliberations long drawn out. The conference must establish order in place of the present chaos by a stabilization of currencies, by freeing the flow of world trade, and by international action to raise price levels. It must, in short, supplement individual domestic programs economic recovery by wise and considered international action. Calls for Clarity of Action

The Disarmament Conference has labored for more than a year, and, as yet, has been unable to reach satisfactory conclusions. Confused purposes still clash dangerously. Our duty lies in the direction of bringing practical results thru concerted action based upon the greatest good to the greatest number. Before the imperative call of this great duty, petty obstacles must be swept away and petty aims forgotten. A selfish victory is always destined to be an ultimate defeat. The furtherance of durable peace for our generation in every part of the world is the only goal worthy of our best

If we ask what are the reasons for armaments, which, in spite of the lessons and tragedies of the World War, are today a greater burden on the peoples of the earth than ever before, it becomes clear that they are twofold: First, the desire, disclosed or hidden, on the part of governments to enlarge their territories at the expense of a sister nation. believe that only a small minority of governments or of peoples harbor such a purpose. Second, the fear of nations that they will be invaded. I believe that the overwhelming majority of peoples feel obliged to retain excessive armaments because they fear some act of aggression against them and not because they themselves seek to be aggressors.

Finds Danger Today Increased There is justification for this fear. Modern weapons of offense are vastly stronger than modern weapons of defense. Frontier forts, trenches, wire entanglements, coast defense-in a word, fixed fortifications-are no longer impregnable to the attack of planes, heavy mobile artillery, land battleships called tanks, and poi-

If all nations will agree wholly to eliminate from possession and use the weapons which make possible a successful attack, defenses automatically will become impregnable, and the frontiers and independence of every nation will become secure. The ultimate objective of the disarmament conference must be the complete elimination of all offensive weapons. The immediate objective is a substantial reduction of some of these weapons and the elimination of many others. This Government believes that the program for immediate reduction of aggressive weapons, now under discussion at Geneva, is but a first step toward our ultimate goal. We do not believe that the proposed immediate steps go far enough. Nevertheless, this its influence toward the attainment of further successive steps of disarmament. Outlines Three Steps Needed Stated in the clearest way, there are three steps to be agreed upon in the present discussions: First, to take, at once, the first definite step toward this objective, as broadly outlined in the MacDonald plan. Second, to agree upon time and procedure for taking the following steps. Third, to agree that while the first and following steps are being taken, no nation shall increase its existing armaments over and above the limitations of treaty obligations. But the peace of the world must be assured during the whole period of disarmament, and I, therefore, propose a fourth step concurrent with and wholly dependent on the faithful fulfillment these three proposals and subject to existing treaty rights

That all the nations of the world should enter into a solemn and definite pact of nonaggression: That they should solemnly reaffirm the obligations they have assumed to limit and reduce their armaments, and, provided these obligations are faithfully executed by all signatory powers, individually agree that they will send no armed forced of whatsoever nature across their frontiers. Common sense points out that if any strong nation refuses to join with genuine sincerity in these concerted efforts for political and economic peace, the one at Geneva and the other at London. progress can be obstructed and ultimately blocked. In such event. the civilized world, seeking both forms of peace, will know where the responsibility for failure lies. I urge that no nation assume such a responsibility, and that all the nations joined in these great conferences translate their professed policies into action. This is the way to political and eco-
