SENIORS TO HOLD CANDY SALE

The Senior Class will hold another one of their candy sales in the library this Friday at 3:15 p. m. Everyone is urged to come with change in their pockets to buy some of the home-made candy. Remember, you may be a Senior some day and you will need a little money for graduation expenses.

HIGH SCHOOL ASSEMBLY

The High School Assembly program last Friday was presented by Miss McElree and members of the Senior Class. The audience included members of the high school, rural schools and many of the parents.

The cast of characters consisted of Edmund Lowe, otherwise known as Willard DeRemer; Mrs. Edmund Lowe, or Lillian Tashman, better known as Dorothy Oakes, and a burglar, played by Wilfred Brown.

The play was exceptionally well given and the program was concluded by a trumpet and baritone duet played by Francis Vickers and Oliver Kemp, accompanied by Ruth Slocum. Margaret Powers acted as announcer.

FUNNIE BONES' TICKLERS

Miss Kelley: "Shall we have a friendly game of cards?"

Mr. Perrone: "No, let's play bridge."

Maud O.: "Don't you file your nails?"

Connie: "No, I just cut them and throw 'em away."

Bob Spicer: "You say you play the piano like Paderewski?"

R. Slocum: "Yes, I play with both hands."

Mrs. Joyce (in Ancient History class): "Summarize the Epicurean philosophy of life."

Red McAndrew: "Eat, drink and be married for tomorrow we die."

H. Vickers: "I don't see how football players ever get clean."

J. Cannon: "What do you suppose the scrub teams are for?"

Dec (seeing a car hub-deep in mud): "Stuck?"

Erma F.: "No, only resting the car. The windshield has a pane and the wheels are tired."
