

Alfred University

(Special to Andover News)

Alfred, Oct. 9.—At the 69th convocation of the University of the State of New York in Albany, Oct. 12th, the New York State College of Ceramics at Alfred University will sponsor the entire educational exhibit. John H. Finley, associate editor of the New York Times will deliver the opening address on "The Invisible University."

During different hours of the day the Ceramic exhibit will be open but on Thursday evening from 10 to 12 o'clock the most important demonstration of the exhibit will be made. At that time various demonstrations of pottery throwing and dinner ware jiggering will be in progress under Professor Harder, Mr. Beckerman, and Miss Fossick. The machines for this exhibit are furnished by the Croslley Machine Company of Trenton, N. J.

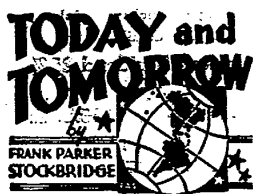

One of the exhibits will be a kick wheel built on new lines by Stanley Stillman of Alfred. It is a cheap but effective substitute for the potter's wheel showing how a laboratory can be cheaply equipped.

All of the materials used in the demonstrations will be prepared at the College of Ceramics, Alfred, under the directions of Professors Merritt and Lobough. The clay will be ground, blunged, screened, and filter-pressed leaving a soft smooth mud suitable for the throwing wheel. Special art pottery, made at the Ceramic College, will be on exhibit, as well as drawings and designs from the design department. About 600 souvenir ashtrays to be given to those attending the convocation have been designed and made by the college at Alfred.

Several industrial plants are co-operating by sending small display cases showing the processing of material from the raw state to the finished product. They are: Onondaga Pottery Co., Syracuse; Buffalo Pottery Co., Buffalo; Lenox China Co., Trenton, N. J.; Corning Glass Works, Corning. Some especially fine dinnerware will be exhibited by the Lenox Company.

After taking the first two grid games: Defiance, Ohio, 0-18, and Rochester 0-7, Alfred's football team will be off to Buffalo on October 14th.

Prof. Ray W. Wingate, director of music at Alfred University is offering a general invitation to any who are interested and wish to drive to Alfred from outlying communities to join his chorus in the production of Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise. The regular meeting time is Tuesday evening, 7 to 8 but might be arranged to suit the groups. The only expense is the price of a book, $1.00, and willingness.

LIFE in its living

A good man died last Sunday. The world had never heard of him. The newspapers never printed his picture. He lived simply, in a small town; thrifty, on a small income. But thousands of officers of the United States Army knew him as a friend and wise counselor when they were young cadets at West Point, where he was one of the minor members of the academic staff.

He was content to work hard, to serve his church and his community, to live without vices or bad habits, and get his satisfactions in life thru lending a helping hand to others. I cannot escape the feeling that his 60 years on earth left humanity somehow better than it was. I shall never lose the scar his passing has left, but I shall always be proud to have had such a man as my brother.

ROOM due in building

The next big boom will be a building boom. I think it has already begun, in spots, and if I am any good at reading the signs of the times, we'll be putting up new houses and rebuilding old ones all over the United States by next spring.

Driving around the country roads near my farm, in one day recently I counted seven new houses and five barns that were under construction, all of them in one township of less than 2,000 inhabitants. And I noticed the same day a report in a New York newspaper that building materials were leading all other commodities in increased sales.

We have to rebuild the whole country every 40 years. We are away behind our normal building program. When we start in earnest to take up the slack, that industry alone, with all the other industries that contribute to it, will assure prosperity for several years.

FIRE in hard times

I had to renew the three-year fire insurance policy on my house and barns the other day. My policies are in a mutual company operating mostly in one county. I found that the usual dividend returnable to policy-holders had been cut to a quarter of what it used to be.

explained. "Always more fire losses in hard times."

I began to wonder whether the worst effect of hard times is not the loss of moral fibre, more than the loss of money. I don't know that age, he has made the acre of land lying around his little cottage into one of the most beautiful and productive flower and vegetable gardens I have ever seen. He has laid out his hillside plot into interesting designs and has built odd-shaped islands in the clear brook at the bottom of the hill, producing an effect as attractive as the terraced mountainside farms of his native land.

In the winter Daniel devotes himself to wood-carving. A sculptured Madonna carved from a block of sugar maple won a place in the county Art Exhibition last summer. He carves native woods into interesting canes and other shapes, and prizes a letter from President Roosevelt, thanking him for a cane he sent him.

I think Daniele Roviario is the only perfect example I have known of a contented man.

SCOTT and his hands

When I was a boy the United States Army was pretty busy fighting Indians. I remember when the Custer Massacre was news, and Sitting Bull and other famous chiefs, any of the fires in our town the past two years was anything but an accident, but I feel pretty sure that some people whom everybody, including themselves, have always believed to be honest, have found it beyond them to resist temptation under stress.

ARTIST neighbor Dan

People drive from miles around to see the gardens of my neighbor, Daniele Roviario. Daniele learned gardening in his native Italy. He was chief gardener of a large estate for many years. Now, in his old including Geronimo, the Apache, were giving Uncle Sam plenty of trouble.

What reminded me of that was seeing a piece in the paper about General Hugh Scott. He was a young lieutenant when he was out West with the Indian fighters, but unlike some Army men, he tried to understand the Indians and get their point of view. So, among other things, he learned the sign language which was common to all the Indians of the Great Plains. The Apaches named Scott "ManWhoCan-Talk-With-His-Hands."

Scott retired from the Army in 1919, and celebrated his 80th birthday last month. But in the past three years he has been putting on paper, in picture and description, the ancient sign language of the vanishing Indians, and now he is at work making them into motion pictures.

A useful, busy and interesting young man of 80!

Tomato Recipes

Do you like to prepare your own tomato juice? This is the way to do it:

TOMATO JUICE

Use firm ripe tomatoes. Wash and remove stem and discard any that show signs of decay. Chop and beat in a covered vessel until the juice flows freely. Strain the juice while warm into each quart completely lined and pressed for twenty minutes in a hot-water bath. If a thicker juice is desired, return the strained juice to the strainer and boil it until it is reduced to one-half the original volume and process as directed above.

This is one of a series of tomato recipes prepared for the Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. Watch for others.
