(Mrs. Raymond Stewart, Reporter)

Zero weather. Just 2 above. Miss Isabelle Caward returned home last week after spending several weeks at the home of her brothers, Lawrence Caward of Dundee and Martin Caward of Prattburg. Erma Mullen and Oliver Keough are ill at their homes with chicken-pox. Ralph Rigby is moving his family from the Newell Stephens farm on Call Hill, better known as the Will Hale farm, to a farm in Buena Vista. Ferry Erskine and family have moved on the Stephens farm. Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gummings and son, Robert Dean and little daughter, Joyce Ann, returned to their home on Colby Creek after spending several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hale of Call Hill. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stewart and daughter, Charlotte were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mullen, Sunday. John Mullen and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Joseph White and family of High-Up, Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Caward of Call Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Mullen motored to Bath, Tuesday to call on Martin Caward, who underwent an operation Monday at Bath hospital. Mr. Caward has been ill three weeks with pneumonia and Monday he was operated on for removal of pus from his lung. Lawrence Erskine is the new pupil this week at school. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence MacDonald and little son of Hornell were callers on William Edwards and family Tuesday evening.

Whitesville

(Mrs. Ella Millspaugh, Reporter)

Nov. 14.—Snow has fallen every day since Nov. 5th. Harold Teater of Midland Park, N. Y., spent the week-end here visiting relatives. Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Reynolds of Whitesville were here Saturday looking after their home here. Mr. and Mrs. Rho Leach, Mrs. Ray Deck and Mrs. John Carpenter were Hornell visitors, Thursday. Mrs. Fred Cornell and daughter, Ruth, were in Hornell, Saturday. Leo Millspaugh of Andover and daughters, Jean and Bethel spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Ella Millspaugh. Mrs. Frank M. Baker of Cleveland, Ohio, was here last week visiting her cousin, Miss Minnie Rose. Rev. Baker brought her here but returned to Cleveland the same day. The M. E. Ladies' Aid had a bake sale Saturday. The proceeds were over $12. Rev. H. J. Marquis returned last Thursday evening from a two-day conference in Pittsburgh, Pa., to which Bishop Leonard called all the preachers of this area. Mrs. C. L. Lewis and Mrs. Nettie Baker visited Whitesville Monday afternoon. The entertainment festival program furnished by Collins Lyceum Service of Buron, N. Y., is unusually good this year. The first number, Nov. 9th, the Lucille Elmore Co., was the best ever given here in this, the seventh year of service. The last number on Nov. 23rd, will be a play, Mrs. Phimptonia Husband

Buy Now Drive Is Winning

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Although the bicycle wave of popularity hit the country last year, the Buy Now Campaign is rapidly catching on. It is the result that many citizens are buying the new cars. Here, right in the heart of the capital, you see Miss Dorothy Bailey with the evening's dinner on the handlebars.

Vivid Pen Portrait of

Bismarck in His Prime

Since I was seated directly opposite to Bismarck during the long dinner after dinner (Bismarck) written on January 26, 1878, I could observe his features for the hundredth time. The forehead is not as prominent as is generally believed. What is conspicuous is the os frontale, (frontal bone), and its prominence is accentuated by the thick, nutty, bushy eye brows. The brain seemed to lie directly behind the forehead. He has a small, flat, Mongolian nose. The mouth is by far and away the most interesting and characteristic feature. It is only possibly to catch occasional glimpses of it beneath the concealing mustache. Although in ordinary conversation a half-smiling, almost effeminate expression is conveyed by these thick white lips, immediately behind lies something menacing and almost predatory. This laughing gentle mouth can, of a sudden, change into that of a wild beast and devour its prey. His chin is puffy and upturned like a fleshy saucer. The expression of the clear observant eyes is at once suspicious and friendly, coldly glittering and determined. Unless he deliberately wishes to reveal his feelings it is impossible to tell from his eyes what is passing through his mind.—From the Diary of Ludwig Bamberger.

British Ships Blessed in Fourteenth Century

So far as we can be certain, the blessing of British ships was in vogue in the fourteenth century; and according to the monk of St. Denys, this was done when the duke of Bourbon dispatched an expedition to Genoa under the earl of Derby in 1380. R. G. Skerrett relates, in Grace Log, shipping magazine. The procedure was in keeping with an ancient custom and intended to insure success; and to that end the ships were blessed by priests. In July of 1318, the bishop of Bangor went to Southampton to give a benediction to the Grace Dieu—one of the king's ships constructed in that port a short while before. The worthy bishop was paid five pounds for his trouble and the glamor he added to that occasion. No vessel of the royal navy was baptized with wine during the fifteenth century—at least that is the declaration of a widely known British naval historian.

Do You Know How To Make Sauerkraut?

MAKING sauerkraut at home is easy and economical, says the Consumers Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. This method of making it has been worked out by the Department of Agricultural Bacteriology at the University of Wisconsin:

- 1. Select good, firm heads of cabbage—preferably a late variety.
2. Trim off all green leaves—be careful to remove all discolored spots.
3. Wash trimmed heads in clean running water.
4. Core and shred. Be careful to keep utensils as clean as possible.
5. Sprinkle salt on shredded cabbage and mix well. Use 2 1/2 pounds of salt for 100 pounds of cabbage.
6. Pack tightly into a clean crock or barrel with a wooden stamper.
7. Spread a clean cloth over the shredded cabbage; place a wooden cover or a plate on top and weight down with stones until about one to two inches of juice stand above the cover.
8. Ferment in a cool place, at 60 to 65 degrees F. for one month to six weeks.

If cabbage is fermented late in the fall or if it can be stored in a very cool place, it may not be necessary to do more than keep the surface skimmed—and protected from insects. Otherwise, it may be necessary to pack the kraut in glass jars, adding enough of the kraut-brine to fill the jars completely. Seal the jars tight and set them away.

Kitchenette Sauerkraut Those who have little storage space may like the kitchenette method of making sauerkraut.

Shred enough cabbage to fill a two quart glass jar. Add to this one tablespoon sugar and one tablespoon salt. Let stand in an open bowl over night so that brine will be formed. Pack tightly into the glass jar. Or you may mix the shredded cabbage with salt and sugar, pack into the jar immediately, and add 1/4 cup boiling water. The hot water and sugar hasten the fermentation process. Screw on the lid and leave the jar in a warm room until the cabbage is well fermented. This kraut will be ready to use in two weeks. It keeps well in a cool place.

Wet for wet not that it is brushed before drying, dried slowly in a cool place, and well shaken when dry.

To think of others is decided by a good thing. The result of such a process should be either a temperate self-satisfaction or a clear-sighted resignation. But the ways of science are not always those of the heart, and that we are less miserable than some people is not a consolation for being more unhappy than others—least of all when the happy are before our eyes and the wretched further off. Neither the preacher of Grantley's doctrine nor its bearer was converted.—Anthony Hope.

Raft of Oysters A new Japanese method of oyster raising suspends the crustaceans from specially prepared ropes hanging from a floating raft. Formerly, oyster growers believed that the most satisfactory means of growing them was in the bed of inlets. The Japanese way, extensive tests have shown grows the oyster faster, larger and in far greater quantities. The raft can be moved around to take advantage of weather and tide conditions.

Old Cloth Decoration With the introduction of transfer printed or penciled china from the works at Battersea, Worcester and Liverpool, copper plates were used in decorating cotton cloth and advertisements came out with "printed and penciled furniture calico." Benjamin Franklin included some of the new cotton with the china he sent to his wife in 1758, saying: "There are also fifty yards of cotton, printed entirely from copper plates, a new invention to make bed and window curtains; and seven yards of chair cottons printed in the same way, very neat."
