Alfred University

(Special to Andover News)

Alfred, Nov. 29.—Dr. John A. Lapp, born near Fillmore in 1880, and a graduate of Alfred University in 1906, was appointed by President Roosevelt recently to serve as impartial chairman of Division No. 2 of the National Coal Labor Board. Serving as this chairman he will automatically become a member of the National Coal Labor Board.

Dr. Lapp has demonstrated his ability for such work by bringing about a settlement of a strike among the employees of the Nash Motor Company, where he was acting in the capacity of regional director of the National Labor Board. He has held prominent positions in social, welfare, and legislative work since 1908 when he became librarian and director of the Bureau of Legislative Information for Indiana State Legislature serving ten years. Various social welfare boards occupied his time until 1927 when he accepted a position as head of the social science department and professor of sociology at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wis. In 1926-27 he was president of the National Conference on Social Work. He has published some ten volumes dealing with law, social welfare and economics.

Quick Cooking Called Secret of Good Cabbage

QUICK cooking in plenty of boiling salted water is the secret of cooking cabbage so that it keeps its color, has a mild agreeable flavor, retains as much as possible of its food value and is not likely to cause digestive disturbances, says the Consumers Information Service of the New York Department of Agriculture and Markets. This general method for cooking cabbage is recommended:

1. Shred or cut the cabbage fine.
2. Drop it into enough boiling salted water to cover it completely, using 1 to 1 1/2 teaspoons salt to each quart of water. The salt helps to retain the color and improve the flavor of the cabbage.
3. Place uncovered over a hot fire, and boil as rapidly as possible. Boil new green cabbage 5 to 8 minutes; white cabbage, 7 to 10 minutes; red cabbage, 20 to 25 minutes. Red cabbage needs some acid in order to retain its color. This may be added by using two or three sour apples or 3 to 4 tablespoons vinegar to each quart of cabbage.
4. Drain cabbage immediately. It may then be seasoned or combined with other foods. The cooking liquid is discarded because of its unpleasant sulphur flavor.

Among the good combinations with cabbage and sauerkraut are cornbeef and cabbage, ham hocks and cabbage, sauerkraut and sauerkraut, ham and cabbage, frankfurters and sauerkraut.

Hot cranberry sauce is good on cabbage.

Hot School Lunch of Milk, Cocoa, Cream Soup, Called Health Aid

Many Schools Throughout The State Already Have School Lunch System—Others Should Follow

By CHARLES H. BALDWIN

Commissioner, Department of Agriculture and Markets
Albany, New York

THREE substantial meals a day which growing children must have is difficult of accomplishment if the child is dependent on a school box lunch for his noon meal.

Digestion is facilitated by warm food and liquid food, but the food in a lunch box is cold and concentrated. Digestion is favored by pleasant social intercourse, but eating a box lunch is a solitary process. Even the teacher, after her morning's work, finds little in her lunch box that stimulates appetite and induces relaxation. A mid-day meal of cold food five times a week throughout the school year is not conducive to good digestion or good health in either teacher or child.

The remedy for this condition is the "hot school lunch," which provides not only food that is hot and therefore appetizing, but also food that possesses high nutritive value. The hot lunch gives an opportunity to provide boys and girls with foods made from milk, vegetables and fruits that are high in minerals, proteins and vitamins, and are necessary and valuable in growth and health-promoting qualities.

The country child, who walks a long distance to and from school, and after school helps with the farm and home chores, especially has a very high food requirement. The box lunch is inadequate for such requirements; the hot school lunch is necessary.

According to Miss Mary McCormick, State Supervisor of Health Teaching, a substantial number of the schools of the State are now serving hot lunches. The next should follow this lead rapidly. Hot school lunches offer a way of educating the parents as well as the children in selecting foods and in preparing them. In fact, the carrying over of nutrition and health information to the family is perhaps the most important effect of the hot school lunch program.

Foods selected for the hot school lunch should be simple, so that they may be prepared in a short time with limited equipment. Milk is an absolute necessity, and should be the foundation of every lunch. Since a minimum of four cups of milk daily is considered the ideal quantity for children, it is always essential to provide at least one cup of milk for each child at the noon meal. Vegetables and fruits also occupy a prominent place among the nutritious and health promoting foods. Frequently among the foods used are a combination of milk and vegetables, such as creamed vegetables, cream vegetable soup, cocoa made with milk, scrambled eggs, or Spanish rice.

A postcard to Consumers Information Service, State Department of Agriculture and Markets, Albany, N. Y., will bring a valuable pamphlet on "Hot School Lunches as a Health Activity," written by Miss Mary G. McCormick, State Supervisor of Health Teaching.
