Alfred University

(Special to Andover News)

Alfred—License to operate a short wave broadcasting station under call letters W8LHK has been granted to the Alfred Radio Club. The station sends a frequency of 3577 kilocycles.

Free service is offered to others using the short wave stations to communicate with students or townspeople here. Students here have already sent messages to their home towns from here. On every Wednesday evening except the fourth, on every Thursday afternoon and every Saturday morning the station will maintain communication with other amateur stations.

Plans are being pushed to exchange athletic scores with other universities thru this medium. Some 20 college students and townspeople are members of the club. Much of the equipment has been donated by interested friends.

The close of the first semester at Alfred University is heralded by the beginning of final examinations on Friday, January 26. New students for the second semester will be registered on February 6th, classes beginning the next day.

Two hour periods are arranged for final examination in each course, and are so timed that no student has more than two examinations in one day. The last examination will be held on Friday, Feb. 2nd. Thus a three-day vacation is allowed between terms. Students who have missed work, or who have special requirements to fill, may occupy that time in order to be eligible to enter classes the second semester. The first semester officially closes on February 2nd; the second semester officially opens February 7th. Students in attendance during the first semester will have registered before the beginning of the final examination period in order to be ready for the opening of the second semester; but students who were not in attendance this fall may register on February 6th in order to enter the first classes of the second term.

Dog Owners' Notice

Dog licenses for 1933 expired on December 31, 1933. The 1934 license fee is due January 1st. Licenses so issued will cover the period from January 1 to December 31, 1934. Every dog must wear a tag of the current dog license year. A dog without such a tag is not protected by law and no action can be maintained for his injury or destruction.

An unlicensed dog may be seized and killed and the fact that a dog is without a tag is presumptive evidence that the dog is unlicensed.

Dog licenses must be obtained from the clerk of the city or town where the dog is harbored or kept.

License fees: Male dog $2.25; female dog $5.75; spayed female dog, $2.25. These amounts include clerk's fees.

No license can be issued for less than the full license year.

The owner of a dog who fails or refuses to obtain a license for the dog as required by law incurs a penalty of $10.00 and costs.

The enumerators of towns and the police departments of cities are required to prepare in January of this year a list of dog owners. The omission of the name of an owner from the enumerator's or police list will not excuse the owner from obtaining a license.

If you owned a dog last year and do not own one now, so advise the clerk of your town or city.

Dog licenses in the town of Andover are issued by A. L. BLOSS, Clerk, P. O. Address, Andover, N. Y.

Way To Industrial Peace Seen In Councils Of Workers

MUCH conflict between workers and employers in industry can be eliminated through the works council system of employee representation, according to a report of Walter C. Teagle, chairman of the industrial relations committee of the Business and Advisory Planning Council, created by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper. Mr. Teagle is president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which for many years has had in operation a plan of employee representation through which workers and management get together to settle disputes and consider working conditions.

WALTER C. TEAGLE

Pointing out that the National Recovery Act gives the works council a legal status equal to that of the labor union for collective bargaining, Mr. Teagle in his report asserts that the organization of workers by plants to include all workers has many advantages over the organization of workers by crafts into unions. "The experience of companies which have operated successfully under employee representation for many years indicates that such a plan encourages the early settlement of disputes in the shop or the department in which they originate," he says. "Differences that cannot be adjusted in this way are taken up in joint conferences of employees and representatives of management. For the protection of an employee or group not satisfied with the decision of a joint conference or of the company executives, appeal may be had to the president or the board of directors. In addition to appeals within the organization, many plans provide for final settlement by arbitration.

"A certain percentage of labor troubles has been due to disagreements between unions themselves as to the classification of work properly belonging to each. Plainly, any such disputes are beyond the decision of company management yet they frequently result in strikes and loss of wages to employees in other departments even though the management is entirely innocent either of provoking the trouble or championing either side after it has arisen.

"Herein lies one of the advantages of employee representation. In that while it insures representation of all employees by their own associates who understand their local craft problems, it avoids jurisdictional disputes between two crafts in the same organization.

"Unity of action in all departments is assured through conferences at which every employee is represented. There is no record of any case where representation by employees has been made use of by racketeers at the expense either of the employees or the employer."

Homespun Yarn

Wearing old, shapeless shoes for housework is an uncertain saving, for it may cause backache and tired feet, with a final lack of efficiency.

Good cooking demands accurate measuring utensils — cups and spoons.

In poultry, the dark meat contains twice as much iron as the light meat.

A broom wears longer if both sides are used equally, and if it is hung up by the handle when not in use.

A high stool in the kitchen saves the homemaker's feet many hours of use. It should be high enough to use conveniently at the sink and kitchen cabinet as well as the work table.

Cords of electric irons, toasters, and waffle irons should wear indefinitely if they are pulled out by the plug instead of by the wire itself, and hung up instead of twisted together and pushed into a drawer.

"Better is a dinner of herbs where love is than a stalled ox and hatred therewith." Quiet good humor at meals is one of the surest aids to digestion.

A good goose or duck pillow may cost more than a poorer quality pillow, but it gives greater comfort and more years of useful service.
