WASHINGTON'S supreme contribution to our country was his unmatched leadership. It is to that ability that we pause in respect on the anniversary of his birth, February 22nd, for without such leadership our nation would never have grown to its present eminence Americanism begins at home . . . , with us ... with you ... It consists of living up to the courage of our forefathers . . . of being men unafraid Slowly but surely values have been readjusted during the last three years and a new perspective has been gained as to what is essential to happiness. The dull gray skies of the long bleak winter of depression are clearing. The bright spring sun, of another victory won, will soon be breaking thru to warm our hearts to renew our faith in ourselves and to make us glad that we too proved ourselves to be men unafraid.
