BITS OF BLARNEY

Contrasts in Allegany county news: Cuba opens a new liquor store and Alfred Station organizes a new Women's Christian Temperance Union. The eternal (?) struggle over the dangerous bottle.

This reduction of CWA workers exposes the finances and family matters of many an Allegany county home to the cold and pitiless gaze of the committees which must say "go" and "stay." And some information is sure to sift thru to the public. To a man on the welfare his home is not his castle in several senses.

Pike, Wyoming county, is up against it when it comes to thawing frozen water mains with electricity as most other villages now find it necessary to do. Its distribution pipes are of wood.

Editor Bristol of the Belfast Blaze suggests a Grunt and Growl Club there. Better make it a Brighton and Boost Bunch.

They had traffic regulations 40 years ago in old York State. There was a law to enforce the use of heels with a cutter or sleigh.

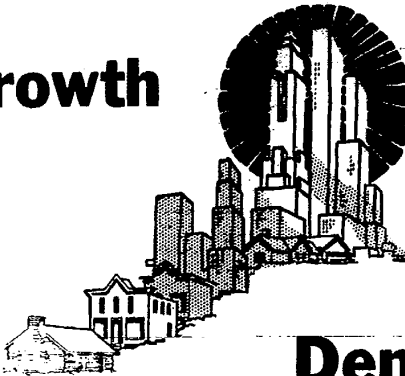

With hundreds of farmers cutting wood, the usual crop of accidents from falling trees have resulted. No fatalities in the county to date, so far as the writer knows.

We thought so. Just as cold before in Allegany county as it was Feb. 9th. Mrs. Jessie Lewis, Abbotts, near Cuba, recalls well from coming home from an Olean hospital on Feb. 19, 1914, that it fell to 40 below zero that night. The mercury continued for three weeks to stay around the zero mark and frequently fell to 20 or 30 below. Ouch! Friendship's gas meter reader (meet 'er in the cellar) says February has been a mighty good month for the gas company.

They say there's nothing new under the sun.—But Editor Peterson of the Belmont Dispatch came near coining a new judicial term in a heading last week when he dubbed County Court "Junior" Court. Until they read the article it kept some county seat frequenters guessing.

A clean rubber sponge is better than a brush for dark woollens.
