THE HI HERALD

A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRINCIPAL

You have asked me to write a S: message for your first edition of the 1934-35 Hi Herald and to do so af-C fords me a real pleasure, for I am F intensely interested in the project. SI The getting of the news for our Ir large daily newspapers has always B held a thrill for reporter and man-7 aging staff alike. The cub reporter, going out on his first assignment, feels no less a thrill than the aviator who, for the first time steps into his plane in Cheyenne, knowing that the next morning important mail must be unloaded in the grey of dawn in Chicago. Undaunted reporters are spending leepless nights and taking risks of limb and even life itself to get the news, and even before the sun rises upon sleeping humanity. linotypes and huge roller presses are putting this news in a tangible form that we, for the mere sum of two or three cents, may sit before our steaming cup of ceffee and have the world events of the past 94 hours great the reporting and managing staff of the Hi Herald can feel some of that same thrill as you go about gathering news of Andover High School and working it into form. Remember, news is everywhere, but like the proverbial buried treasure, requires much digging and much clear vision to find. Train yourselves, therefore, to be awake to happenings, to learn that things are of human interest, and to develop a keenness of observation that will be a permanent asset thru life.

However, let me caution you to mind the reporter of the mind the standards cach like the first warms of the mind the develop a keenness of observation that will be a permanent asset thru life.

Accepting a keenness of observation that will be a permanent asset thru life.

However, let me caution you to maintain high standards and high ideals for your paper. Do not let the false claims of sensationalism cause your paper to degenerate into a mere tabloid. Plenty of feature news, carefully written editorials, original composition work of a superior grade, humorous incidents of course—all of these will make your H Herald a high class paper and will give to the people of Andover a true indication of the standards that Andover High School has set out this year to maintain.

NEW FEATURE ADDED TO HIGH SCHOOL SCHEDULE

EDITORIAL

This year we wish to make the Hi Herald a standard school paper which will contain all the real news in and about school. I am sure that this will not be a difficult matter if we all co-operate with one another. I am particularly ambitious to have the Hi Herald run on the same basis of efficiency that the rest of the school is now working so nicely on.

It was a pleasure to see so many out to Hi Herald meeting Monday and if we co-operate with each other we will surely accomplish our purpose, which is to issue a standard school paper every week.

THOSE WHO PASSED REGENTS LAST JUNE

The report of the June Regents examinations was received at the school shortly after school started, with the sad news that the State Department had rejected eleven papers that had been sent in last June as passing. This percentage compares favorably with previous years, but according to Mr. Bretch does not represent a desirable record.
