THEY SAY . . .

January and February are low ebb months so far as our resistance to disease is concerned, especially maladies affecting the respiratory tract. This means that we need an extra amount of vitamin-A to bolster up the supply diminished by winter hazards and diet. The common sources of supply for Vitamin A are: Cod Liver Oil, Halibut Liver Oil, Milk, Butter, Eggs, Green leafy Vegetables and other colored vegetables. Halibut Liver Oil is the richest natural source of Vitamin A and a few drops a day during the winter months to supplement a normal diet are all that is needed to keep our bodies well supplied with this anti-infective vitamin.

The pneumonia fight led by the State and joined in by allied forces is a notable venture. Emphasis is laid upon the fact that pneumonia is highly contagious and that, usually, successful treatment is only accomplished by early diagnosis by the physician. The State offers to supply your doctor free with Type I. anti-pneumonia serum.

A new serum treatment for Asthma is in the experimental stage in Philadelphia, and no doubt will soon be available to physicians. If it proves generally effective, it will bring relief to many sufferers of Asthma and Hay Fever.

By the Way . . .

We have a few more copies of February True Story, so now some of you need not be disappointed. Come early.

We have the Pepsodent deal on hand for Monday night. It will be announced by Amos n' Andy at that time and will go on sale then. Supply is very limited. So hurry, after you hear about it.

This is appreciation week for Campana Italian Balm sponsors for radios "Grand Hotel" program. We have it in 10c and 35c sizes.

Customers will save money if they bring their bottles to be refilled when buying household remedies. The saving averages about 5c per sale.

We have turned down many calls for White Iodine. We beg to inform our public that after Iodine is white it is no longer Iodine—but an Iodide and as such is entirely without disinfectant value. What value it does have is due to the alcoholic content.

Federation of All Wild Life Interests Is Now Under Way

Federation of all groups and individuals interested in wildlife restoration and conservation into a nation-wide organization for concerted action is now under way. It has been announced by Charles E. Clark, Jr., chairman of the committee on conservation of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The country has been divided into ten sections, each in charge of a sub-chairman, who in turn has state chairmen under him. The plan calls for organization by county, state and nation of the country's sportsmen's clubs, nature leagues, conservation associations, farm groups and all others interested in restoration, either from a recreational or economic standpoint.

The various units of the federation will be entirely autonomous and continue to carry on the varied programs upon which they are now engaged, but they would unite in a large, general program entailing the broad principles of conservation and restoration. Each local group would be represented on a state council, which in turn would have representation on the general national council.

At the North American Wildlife Conference in Washington the first week in February, a general federation will be formed and officers elected. Then a definite program will be drawn up for action.

It has long been recognized that lack of co-ordination among existing organizations is largely to blame for neglect of the country's wildlife resources and their consequent serious depletion, and the federation is designed to meet and correct this situation thru united action.
