Storm Briefs

Main street lights and power was restored permanently Friday morning.

Sunday afternoon the residential section was completely restored to light.

Monday night our streets were again lighted.

Commissioner Rennells reset 12 electric poles and has at least 30 more that will have to be renewed as soon as possible.

The estimated damage to our electric plant is placed at $3,000.

The Allegany Mutual Telephone Company managed to keep service going on Main street at all times. Outside lines were put out of business.

Telephone communication with Wellsville was restored Friday, eastern communication on the Bell system is still out.

Friday Tip Top was added to the working telephone connections.

Manager Hoagland says that there are 50 telephone poles that will have to be reset.

In order to give service, covered telephone wire was strung temporarily on the ground.

The estimated damage to the Allegany Mutual Telephone Co. is placed at $600.

Wednesday night Manager Hoagland had four rural lines hooked up and seven still down.

The firemen made their last trip to the high school Friday afternoon to pump water out of the boiler room of that building.

During the entire time of darkness the fire hall was the only place in town having electric lights, made possible thru the kindness of the Higby Electric Company. "Ernie" brought his Delco-Light system up to the hall and put it in operation for the boys, much to their gratification.

Our fire boys were on duty at the hall continuously during the time the electricity was off.

Much Damage Done To Sugar Bushes

Farmers thruout this vicinity have suffered a heavy loss from the ice storm which damaged their sugar bushes badly. The splendid maples have been sadly broken by the weight of ice. Some farmers claim the snapping of limbs as they were broken sounded like machine guns. Many buckets were also destroyed. However, with the courage and determination of Allegany county citizens, they are going to work their bushes and expect to make many gallons of syrup for market.

LEAGUE ENDORSES LONIS MILK BILL

Believe It Will Pave the Way for Permanent Milk Legislation. Now Before the Albany Legislature.

Pointing out that milk control in New York State was adopted as an emergency measure, with its proponents at that time urging that as soon as possible control be returned to the industry, Fred H. Sexauer, president of the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, in a statement recently, gives reasons for the Association's approval of the Lonis bill now before the legislature at Albany.

Mr. Sexauer said the Lonis bill appeals to the Dairymen's League because "it contains a method of easing from the emergency situation to the handling of normal problems" and because "it recognizes a sound principle of government—government by the consent of the governed."

The present milk control law has become increasingly unenforceable and has caused increasing irritation between enforcement agencies and the dairy industry, said Mr. Sexauer because of the state's inability "to control the price of milk shipped from one state to another," and because of lack of equity between producers which resulted in individuals and groups of individuals being forced to break the law in order to acquire a market at anything above surplus prices.

"The milk control breakdown has come gradually, almost imperceptibly," said Mr. Sexauer. "Eventually the situation became so intolerable that the reputable factors in the industry were faced with a choice between planned evasion of the law and constructive unified effort to establish some workable legislative program."

"Increasing violations by distributors in purchasing from producers and in sales to wholesale trade have resulted in more and more discussion of the problems of milk control. This is true even in areas where interstate complications are not a factor. During the past year there has been a growing lassitude of farmers generally toward continuance of state control of the milk business."

The Lonis bill would continue the present milk control law to November 1. That would allow producers' organizations and the industry to prepare to assume the responsibility of protecting the industry, said Mr. Sexauer, and would also eliminate milk control from the coming political campaign, "which we believe desirable because acrimonious discussion of the milk problem always hurts consumption and creates false impressions."

The Lonis bill would allow producers, distributors and producers' organizations in any market to discuss their problems after July 1st with the idea of setting up a program so that when arbitrary control ends November 1 they will be ready to present to the Commissioner of Agriculture and Markets a program for that particular market. Under present laws it is illegal for producers' organizations to discuss their problems and agree upon prices.

"It would seem under the proposed (Lonis) legislation that it would be possible to set up a program of milk control in a market which meets the needs of that market, which recognizes the problems which exist, and takes into consideration the individual characteristics of the people who are engaged in the production and marketing of milk," said Mr. Sexauer.

"This bill appeals to our association because we believe that under it material benefits will come to producers. Without legislation of this character we fear that the several groups and organizations within the industry will continue as they have during the past three years each trying to hold for itself the greatest possible amount of fluid markets. Inequities among producers and producers' groups, and the lack of understanding of the problems incident to each market will continue."

"The Dairymen's League has worked conscientiously and diligently with others in the industry to formulate a workable plan. We believe it has merit. To the extent that the industry is willing to support it, and the legislature looks upon it with favor, it has our endorsement."
