WEALTH

The ultimate goal of every individual is to attain health, wealth and happiness. Wealth does not consist of money only, for that is only a medium of exchange. We can be wealthy in our supply of knowledge and in our character.

The value of money may go up and down, but the value of knowledge and character remains constant. The greater our knowledge and character is, the more wealth we possess as individuals, even though we may be poor in material wealth.

TORTURE WEEK

"Torture Week" begins for a few students next Monday. Of course this does not hold true in all cases, and about 25 per cent of the students have characterized Regent's Week as such.

The pupils who will not be "tortured" are those who know they have kept up their year's work and have not been trying to "skin thru." Naturally there are subjects that are hard for us, but if we do our daily work, we would not be afraid of trying the Regents in that subject.

It is too late now to start anew, but remember, that reviewing may help and that it is never too late to begin the next season right!

!! The Spotlight !!

Well, folks, my time with you has almost come to an end and then you'll have to look around for gossip yourself.

That was certainly some dance the Juniors had. And woe unto the ones who missed it! But, here's something—The Seniors are having their ball the 26th of June, with the same orchestra. So all of you who didn't go to the Junior Prom, here's a good time to find out what you missed by not going.

Marian S. seems to be quite acquainted with "Houghton." He even comes to school to see her.

Marian L. and the Junior Class President were seen at the Prom Wednesday night. What ho!

Don. L. seems to be in "Seventh Heaven" to have Alyse with him.

Did you think the Junior Prom orchestra was going to be too hot for you, Clyde K.?

And who was James L. escorting? Not Beatrice S. by any chance?

Everyone is talking about the Senior Ball. Why wouldn't they? George J. is already "dated up" with Fotinye for that night. Why don't the rest of you lads get busy and everyone turn out to this grand affair?

So Marjorie went to the circus—and who with?

There certainly has been a number of picnics lately. Yours truly went to one that the Hi Herald staff had—and, that was SOME picnic! And, here's the surprising thing about it—there was enough to eat, and all of it good! Just as a tip to you girls, Mr. Host and Mr. McGee are some dishwashers.

Say, do you know what the Seniors are doing now? They are just about to complete their year books—and here's the outstanding feature—It only costs 10c. Did you say 10c—Yes, I said 10c!!

Well, boys, things certainly look bad for you since Jimmy Lynch has a new car. What chance have you got with the girls now?

I guess that's about all I have to say this week.

Your's 'til Regent's week ceases to be a big worry.

THE SPOTLIGHT

P.S.—I wish all of you would drop something HUMOROUS in the Contribution Box for next week's paper—limericks, ballads, anything funny. Goodness knows we'll all need something to cheer us up after Regent's.

HYDE MARIONETTE SHOW PRESENTED

COUNTY AT MEET

In the annual sectional track meet held in Rochester Saturday, Andover scored three and one-half points, to lead all Allegany county schools. Wellsville scored three points, while Belfast, Bolivar and Friendship were unable to tally.

Joe McAndrew and Don Lynch climaxed their career as high school track stars by turning in fine performances in their respective events. McAndrew finished third in the hundred and fourth in the 220 yard dash, being defeated by representatives of the large Rochester schools in each case. Don Lynch, altho finishing fourth in the half-mile, ran the distance in two minutes, five and three-fifths seconds, which is nearly two seconds under the Allegany county record. Farnham Pope making his debut in the faster competition, finished a good eighth in the mile run.

There were eight county districts and 38 schools represented in this track meet.

ON CHOOSING A VOCATION

As it is time for some of the A. H. S. students to make a definite decision concerning their vocations, the following essay, written by an English IV. student, seems quite fitting:

When a person asks himself why he plans to work, the answer is usually "to earn a living." Few men can keep from starving unless they work. Then there is also the desire for gain. This desire for gain takes many forms and has many degrees, but it constitutes an attractive goal.

One of the most perplexing questions confronting young people is that of choosing a life career. This choice is probably one of the most important decisions one will ever make. Work for which one is adapted and in which one is genuinely interested is life play, and becomes a source of joy and satisfaction. When it is realized that one spends six or eight hours a day, five or six days a week, month after month, and year after year in the work of his choosing, it becomes apparent that the choice of this occupation is a very important decision.

Large numbers of people today find themselves in occupations for which they are not adapted, and in which they have little or no interest. In contrast with those who made wise selections, they are likely to be dissatisfied and inefficient workers, to whom the daily tasks are frequently near drudgery. It is probable that many of these unhappy misfits simply drifted into their present line of work by taking the first job that came their way without considering either the requirements of the work or their qualifications for it.

It is not true that each person is "born to" some occupation and cannot be successful unless he finds it. The requirements of certain occupations are very much alike. On the other hand, no individual is equally qualified for all occupations. Instead, it is to be understood that there are types of work, rather than specified occupations, in which one can reasonably expect to succeed.

In their attempts to choose the right vocations many people make the mistake of deciding to enter certain vocations because of some one factor that was really of little or no real significance. For instance, one boy decided to become a lawyer simply because he admired a vigorous young attorney for whom he caddied. A doctor reared his only son with the idea that the boy was to attend medical school and return to go into partnership with him.

There are two things which you need to do in considering your vocation. First, examine yourself to discover your points of particular strength or weakness. Second, study the occupations of the world to discover what qualifications are required of the workers. This is not a difficult task and really benefits one in the end.

After knowing one's interests and abilities, the selection of the type of activity should be based upon information regarding the world's work. Much information is desirable from different sources and to this information one should add a certain amount of first-hand knowledge of the vocations under consideration.

Of all types of occupations, unskilled labor is the least desirable. Employment is irregular and wages low. Because of these disadvantages we should all prepare ourselves for some definite type of work.

SOPHOMORES HAVE PICNIC

The sophomore class had a combination picnic and weiner roast the evening of Wednesday, June 10, in Joyce's gully.

Charles Burgett and Charlotte Cook deserve the credit for the well organized affair at which everyone had a "big time."

HI HERALD AND LIBRARY COUNCIL PICNIC HELD

The Hi Herald staff and Library Council held a picnic Monday evening at Wood's cottage at Elm Valley.

Dolores Farwell was chairman of the refreshment committee and were things good! Mr. Host and Mr. McGee were the chief cooks and bottle washers, as well as a constant source of amusement.

The evening was made lively by swinging, ball playing, pitching of horseshoes and see-sawing, not to mention mosquito swatting. Later the party adjourned to the cottage where it was discovered that Veronica Lynch could not prevaricate with a straight face when the game "I doubt it" was played.

It was also discovered during the evening that Charlotte Cook is quite a good scorekeeper in the game called "Hearts."

Seek Local Historical Information

Senator and Mrs. Desmond Before Recently Restored Revolutionary Army Hut at Temple Hill, Near Newburgh

Local cooperation is requested in an appeal from State Senator Thomas C. Desmond, of Newburgh, for information which may result in a better recognition of historical spots in various neighborhoods of the State. A neighborhood movement is responsible for the recent restoration of the Revolutionary Army Hut shown in the picture above. Senator Desmond, an officer of the National Temple Hill Association which erected the hut, from privately donated funds, and which is seeking to develop the local, as a patriotic shrine, open free to the public. Nearby was an encampment of the Revolutionary Army, under the command of General Washington.

In addition to being a member of the Military Affairs and Public Education Committees of the State Senate, Senator Desmond is a trustee of the State Historical Association and, as such, interested in historical work in all of the counties. With Mrs. Desmond he plans to make this summer a series of inspection trips in New York State.

"Work already done by the State Education Department and others," said he, "in marking historical spots, is excellent. I am convinced, however, that in nearly every township, village and city in the State interesting information about early Indian and white settlements, and other historical matters, is still available from local residents, descendants of pioneer families, which may be lost forever, unless speedily preserved. In some cases, the expenditure now, for repairs, of a few dollars obtained from philanthropic sources, may save some valuable historical relic for the inspiration of future generations.

"Suggestions sent to me about historical work from anywhere in the State will be most welcome. They will be promptly investigated and later forwarded, if found worthy, to the proper private or public agency."
