Beware of Poison Gas!

THOUSANDS of persons die from poisonous gas 'in the United States each year.

While the general health of the country appears]; is increasing, particularly the mortality traced to accidental absorption of poisonous gases, due largely motorists starting their engines in garages with doors

Motorists are being warned continually to be careful when working with their cars in garages to be sure to have plenty of ventilation, as the effects of carbon monoxide gas strikes death without warning. In a summary of the situation, pertinent facts are of everyone. They are as follows: One of the greatest dangers to health and life carbon monoxide gas, which kills before you notice i A small quantity breathed into the lungs may car

Take a Look at South America

RESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S visit to South America] } has turned the eyes of the people of North America toward the south half of the Western Hemisphere, bout which most of us know a great deal less than we l know about Europe. Somehow the history and geography of South America seems to be rather neglected most of our school courses, considering the fact that nearer neighbors than are those of Europe.
