CHRISTMAS MUSICAL PROVES DELIGHTFUL

The co-operation of the various faculty committees and faithful practices of many students, under the supervision of Prin. and Mrs. Glenn E. Bretsch, made possible one of the loveliest Christmas programs Andover people have had the pleasure of seeing in some time.

The committees are grateful to all of those who so kindly loaned costumes and properties, and feel especially indebted to the Odd Fellows for the robes and the Rev. Herman Gerlach for the many things loaned which made successful the chance scene in the play.

The program began fittingly with "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," sung by the girls' chorus, dressed as angels. Following this came carols and dances of England and France. Two most effective pantomimes were "The Christmas Tree," and that which accompanied the "Coven-try Carol," in which Marian Swartz, lovely as Mary, and Clyde Briggs as Joseph, made a colorful picture against a background of singing angels.

The story of the advent of Christ was told in song and pantomime, closing with the well-loved "Silent Night" as a finale.

The musical program was followed by the inspiring play, "Why the Chimes Rang," by E. A. McFadden, adapted from R. M. Alden's story by the same name.

The naturalness with which the members of the cast took their parts greatly enhanced the atmosphere of the play.

Harold Rice, as Holger, did especially good work, as did Donald Hardy, James Driscoll, and Fotiney Karcanes in their respective roles.

A great deal of the beauty of the chance scene should be credited to the art director, Miss Georgianna DeWitt, and the director of lighting, Laurence E. Host and his assistant, Basil Brundage, as well as to the sincerity with which the characters pantomimed their parts.

Mrs. Leona Scott directed the musical part of the program and Miss Mary Lou Day was director of the dramatic production.

The program follows:

Program
"Hark, the Herald Angels Sing,"

ANDOVER DEFEATS STRONG WELLSVILLE TEAM ON

WELLSVILLE'S COURT

For the first time in history, an Andover High School basketball team invaded Wellsville and defeated the larger school by the decisive score of 29 to 24. Completely outplaying their opponents, the speedy Andover team jumped into an early lead which it never relinquished. The score at half time was 14 to 6. Wellsville made its only bid for victory in the third quarter as Cook and Dahlgren dropped in four successive long shots. Andover's fast breaking attack drew away again in the last quarter as McGill and Fulkerson led the offense. McGill scored 16 points for the Purple while Kemp played an outstanding defensive game. Cook likewise scored 16 points in a nice individual effort for Wellsville.

A-H-S— ALUMNI GAME NEXT TUESDAY EVENING

Tuesday night, Dec. 29th, the annual Alumni vs. high school basketball game will provide much color in the A. H. S. gym. This game has been an annual affair for many years and every time becomes more colorful than ever.

This year's crack varsity team is expected to give the old "grads" all of the fire any team could want. The varsity line-up will probably consist of McGill and Fulkerson, the dangerous offense of the purple, with Don Joyce in the pivot position where he has worked nicely in past games. Working defensively for Andover will probably find "Eddie" Kemp and Ray Briggs in the guard positions. These two boys have done a great deal in keeping varsity defense strong. The high school second team will see much service in the game, due to their fine relief work in previous games.

The graduates, on the other hand, are expected to be one of the toughest aggregations ever to represent the alumni. They will have players such as Howard McAndrew, Robert Joyce, Don Lynch, the Cannon boys, Ed. Alderson, Malcolm Brundage and other former stars of the high school.

Don't miss this exciting battle, which will take place in the Andover High School gym at 8 o'clock next Tuesday night.

LETTERS TO SANTA CLAUS

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 7, 1936

Dear Santa:
May I have a doll that walks and sleeps and talks, and takes a bottle? May I have a doll carriage? My brother would like a bicycle and a rocking horse. Santa, how are you? Santa, I love you. I hope you have a nice ride over the house tops. Sonny and I are a good boy and girl.
Your friend,
Barbara and Sonny Lehman

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 7, 1936

Dear Santa Claus:
Please give me a double-barreled popgun. I want a movie, but not an electric one, a saxophone, a pair of stockings and a truck. How are your reindeers and sled?
Your friend,
Donald Burger

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 7, 1936

Dear Santa Claus:
How are you? How do you like your sleigh ride across the snow? I would like a Jack-in-the-box, a big doll, a bicycle, a pocketbook and a story book. Santa Claus, how do you come in?
Your friend,
Geraldine Lynch

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 7, 1936

Dear Santa Claus:
Will you bring me some roller-skates, and a bicycle for Christmas? Will you please leave me an orange and grapes? Will you get me some rubbers? I have been a good girl.
Your friend,
Lois Jean.

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 7, 1936

Dear Santa Claus:
I would like a typewriter and a pen and pencil set. I have been a good girl. I help my mother Saturdays.
Your friend,
Virginia Loring

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 14, 1936

Dear Santa:
I want a doll and a doll carriage. I want a car. Your friend,
Kathryn Joyce

ACROSS THE PRINCIPAL'S DESK

There are 394 schools in New York State that are maintaining high school departments of Vocational Home-making, and probably nearly as many more that offer courses in Home Economics. These numbers include many of our near neighbors: Almond, Alfred, Arkport, Canaseraga, Richburg, Bolivar, Wellsville, Belmont.

Would it be possible for Andover to have a Home-making Department? What benefits would be obtained? How would it appeal to the girls and to their parents? These are questions that are being considered and studied by your principal and board of education. We would like to have you study the problem along with us, and to this end there will be printed in the Hi Herald a series of articles explaining the nature of the home-making courses and their organization in the school curriculum.

I believe that instruction in home-making would meet a real need here in Andover, and a preliminary study would seem to indicate that much of the additional cost could be met by increased state aid and economies in other departments. At present, the commercial courses constitute the only non-academic work offered in Andover High School, and with the making of a home, the ultimate occupation of the great majority of girls, a scientific study of the household and home arts would not be amiss in any community.

SENIOR CHRISTMAS DANCE

One of the most delightful dances which has ever been held in Andover took place Monday night in the Andover High School gymnasium. The dance was under the auspices of the Senior Class, and they are to be congratulated upon their successful handling of the affair.

The gymnasium was transformed into a veritable Christmas fairland. As the dancers entered they were greeted by the fragrance of pine and balsam. Two Christmas trees gaily lighted, stood on either side of the orchestra platform and twinkled a welcome. Streamers of white crepe paper floating from the ceiling formed a canopy greatly enhanced by the clever lighting which gave the effect of moonlight. The walls of the gym were striped with the traditional red and green of Christmas.

One of the chief attractions of the evening was the splendid music of Johnny Fitzgerald and his orchestra of Olean.

The committees who worked so faithfully to make this dance a success are as follows:

Entertainment—Bruce McGill, Kenneth Vars, Raymond Briggs.
Decoration—Clyde Kemp, Maxine Crandall, Ida Mae Howland.
Publicity—Leo Fulkerson, Elwin Howland, Regina Lynch, Lester Regan.

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 7, 1936

Dear Santa Claus:
How are you? I want for Christmas a bathrobe, a pair of bedroom slippers, a doll, a doll carriage and a set of dishes. I will leave this note on the table and by it I will leave an apple, a bunch of grapes and an orange. I want lots of things but try and get them. I go to school in the third grade. I have been a good girl.
Your friend,
Norma S.

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 14, 1936

Dear Santa:
I want a bicycle and a doll carriage. I want a set of tin dishes.
Helen Yannie.

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 14, 1936

Dear Santa:
I want a ball and a car. Thank you.
Isabelle Krause

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 14, 1936

Dear Santa:
I want a baby carriage and a Shirley Temple doll. I want a little pink cabinet with little dishes and I want a sled and two chairs. Thank you.
Edna Mae Kruger.

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 14, 1936

Dear Santa:
I want a di-dee doll, and a doll carriage. My doll bed is broken. May I have a new one?
Your friend,
Mary Hosley.

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 14, 1936

Dear Santa:
I want a car. I want a di-dee doll, and a doll house, and a rocking chair and a table, and please, may I have a set of Mickey Mouse dishes?
Your friend,
Phyllis Clair.

Andover, N. Y., Dec. 14, 1936

Dear Santa:
I want a di-dee doll that opens and shuts her eyes. I want a snow-suit and snow shoes, too. Thank you.
Doris Atwell.

CHRISTMAS POEMS

Christmas

C is for chicken which we all devour,
H is for happiness we have by the hour,
R is the run we have before dinner,
I is the immense fun we have in the winter,
S is for snow in which we have fun,
T is for tummy, which takes every crumb,
M is for mother who prepares the food,
A is for after dinner when we're in a bad mood,
S is for supper which doesn't taste good.
—Pearl Goodridge, English I.

Christmas

Christmas is the time of year
When we all plan on so much,
When we all want to be near
Our relation, friends and such.
Old Santa climbs down the chimney
And fills the Christmas tree,
With gifts and toys for all
The little girls and boys.
—M. Joyce, English I.

A-H-S— ANDOVER'S SHORT STORY WRITERS SHOW THEIR ABILITY

"The Christmas Clock"

Robert H. Hall, English I.

It was Christmas Eve. The house was very silent except the occasional whispering heard from the children's bedroom. The old clock was ticking loudly on the dresser and the old Grandfather's clock had just struck 12. That clock always made me have a spooky feeling when a small child. I could see its great visible hands and numerals peer out at me in the dark. Then it would boom terrifically when an hour came around. I would lie awake nights in a cold sweat and nearly fall out of bed when that terrible old Grandfather's clock struck.

The only thing I had wanted that Christmas was to have that clock taken away. I finally went to sleep and awoke the next morning to hear the rooster crow loud and shrilly. But I did not hear the steady tick-tock of the Grandfather's clock in the hall.

I got up, put my clothes on and stepped out in the hall. The clock was there, but it was not running. After this the old clock didn't seem to be such a sinister thing. After we had had our gifts and party that day, father asked me to help him carry the old clock up to the attic which I readily agreed to do.

But now ten years have passed and I have had the old clock repaired and it is sitting in the attic waiting again for Christmas to come around again so that I may set it in the hall and wind it up so that it will tick away the hours. I now treasure the old clock as much as father, for whom I had it repaired. But he does not know it yet, and I want it to be a great surprise to him when Christmas comes again and he is startled by its loud musical sound which used to frighten me.

"The Night Before Christmas"

Gloria Green, English I.

There was a belief in the Smith household that the first person to say "Merry Christmas" on Christmas morning had the happiest Christmas. So Jack made up his mind that this year he would be first. He never had been before. The night before Christmas, Mrs. Smith read a story out loud and Mr. Smith read the Christmas Bible story, just as they did every Christmas Eve.

"Ho-hum," yawned Jack. "Guess I'll go to bed."

"That's funny," said Sally, his sister; "you never want to go to bed other Christmas Eves. You just want to get up first in the morning."

Hours later or so it seemed to Sally, she heard Jack creep from his bed and steal down the stairs. The third step gave a loud squeak and Mrs. Smith said: "Why, Jack, go back to bed."

"Isn't it morning?" Jack asked.

"Dear me, no. It isn't even midnight. Daddy and I haven't gone to bed yet."

Sally thought she could stay awake until midnight then she could be first to shout "Merry Christmas," but she dozed off to sleep.

After while Jack woke up again, and heard the clock strike eleven, and he decided to stay awake until midnight, but he dozed off to sleep also.

The first thing either Jack or Sally knew was that mother, daddy and baby brother were standing in their room. The sun was shining in the windows and daddy was saying: "Now, all together, one, two, three!—Merry Christmas!" shouted the Smith family.

"A Mixed-up Christmas"

Betty Greene, English I.

It was three days before Christmas. Father and mother together with their four children, Mary Ann, John, Harold and June, went to do some Christmas shopping. Father (Hi Herald Continued on Page Nine)
