I like to sit and ponder 🕥

So certain is the gladness

I like to view, in fancy,

On the joys of yesterday;

That such reveries convey!

Many scenes I used to know,

And wander down the pathways

Where fond recollections grow.

The happy days of childhood-

How delightful it would be

So thoughtlessly we lived them,

Bring them back to you and me!

Always eager for the dawn-

Only after they were gone! . . .

So much of all the gladness

And so, I like to ponder,

That we find along life's way

In the fireside's friendly glow,

On scenes of home and childhood

In the Land of Long Ago.

Is gained through contemplation

Of the joys of yesterday;

If memories could truly
