THAS been stated that the machine that casts type! is more closely interwoven with the happiness c mankind than is any other thing that has been invented). since man was born. Happiness lies more closely the development of the mind than to that of the body or to any other thing in life.

Between the pages of good books are the romances, the adventures, the human joys and sorrows. that give color to history and connect us in sympathy! and understanding with men and women in far-off lands and by-gone days. Thru their pages we can walk and talk with the greatest thinkers of all times. In Hours and Wages them we' find the accumulated riches of thought and the dearly-bought experiences of countless millions THE prospects for the enactment of a Federal law department answers: "We have not Josie and Agnes Parker. are confronting you and me today.
