Editorial

IT'S NOT TOO LATE!

With another five weeks mark period drawn to a close, it is still not too late for beginners to work for passing marks in the June finals.

Only 15 more weeks are left in which to continue advance work, and review that which has been covered thus far. Although cramming is a poor policy, and often a handicap during the first semester's work, it sometimes becomes necessary when the second term draws to a close. Although the system is not generally recommended it might be wise for some of us to cram now. Preparing daily assignments and paying attention in class are two of the best ways I have ever found to achieve the knowledge which is required to pass the final examination.

Fifteen weeks may sound like a long time, but it's very short when you try to put 40 weeks' work into that length time. However, if you are one of the late beginners, don't waste any time because a prompt beginning now can lead to a prompt ending.

Guidance

Getting a Job

For the past few weeks the Guidance Class has been preparing to study in detail various occupations. They have discussed briefly such topics as "What kind of job do I prefer?" "How may I hear of jobs?" "How may I get the job I want?" "What type of school should I attend in preparing for that job?" and "Should I go to college?"

Now each member of the class has selected a vocation to study. The study will be carried on individually with each pupil collecting all the material that he can possibly acquire about his particular choice of occupation; finally he will organize the material and arrange it in attractive booklet form. It is hoped that this work will be done well enough so that the booklets may be kept and referred to by others who may be trying to decide for which occupation or vocation they should prepare.

Senior Interview

On May 9, 1920, Mr. and Mrs. Raphael Cook welcomed a daughter, Charlotte Marie. She has lived in Andover all her life and has attended Andover High School. Her favorite pastimes are dancing and swimming. Her favorite type of reading is fiction, with Lloyd C. Douglas' "Magnificent Obsession," ranking as the best liked. Her favorite subjects are history and English. The movie she enjoyed most during the past year was "Lost Horizon." Her favorite actor is William Powell and her favorite actress at present is Sonja Henie.

Charlotte is an active member of the Senior Class. She belongs to the girls' chorus; is a member of the Library Council, a cheer leader; the secretary of the Dramatic Club, and a member of the Hi Herald staff. When Charlotte leaves school she would like to take up library work. We wish her success in whatever profession she chooses.

Guess Who

Distinguishing feature: Auburn hair.

Chief characteristic: Gaiety.
Who is this popular Freshman?
Answer to last week's Guess Who: Leo Nobles.

All Regents Papers Stay at Albany

With the return of the Regents report from Albany comes the news that all of the Regents papers sent in following the Regents examination period in January, 1938, have been accepted as passing by the Regents examining board. This also includes two papers in English four years that were rather doubtful and which were not included as passing in the first report published.

This leaves but two failing papers out of the 24 papers that were written, or a record of 91.7 per cent passing. Of special interest in the report is the fact that the three 100 per cent papers in intermediate algebra written by Donald Hardy, Doris Honnegger and Leo Nobles were all accepted as perfect papers with a 100 per cent rating.

Principal Confers With Seniors

During the past two weeks Principal Glenn E. Bretsch has arranged individual conferences with the members of the Senior Class to talk over their plans for next year and to offer assistance in getting started on their life careers.

Some of the Seniors will return next year for post graduate courses; some will attend schools of higher learning and some will seek employment directly upon leaving school, in some cases making use of instruction obtained in high school courses.

Seniors are advised, if planning on college, to write at once for catalogs or announcements of the institutions in which they were interested, in order to determine what the entrance requirements are.

Knitting Club Gets First Lesson

The Knitting Club, started three weeks ago under the direction of Miss Mary Wood, has been learning the first step in the intricate process of knitting and allied arts how to "cast on."

At the first meeting which took place February 15th, the following officers were elected: President, Veronica Lynch; vice president, Betty Jo Ludden; secretary, Mary Green; chairman of program committee, chairman of constitution committee, chairman of the scrap book, Marian Swarts.

The club looks promising with a good initial membership of 16. These with the officers, include the following: Kathleen Howland, Eleanor Northrup, Jean Northrup, Catherine Lynch, Aline Reisman, Kallioy Karcanes, Letha Callaghan, Mary Mesler, Charlotte Cook, Josephine Butler and Thelma Callaghan.

A.C.S.P.A. Meets At Bolivar

The third meeting of the Allegany County Scholastic Press Association will take place at the Bolivar Central School Saturday, March 12th.

The editor of the Hi Herald has been asked to talk on editorials, a discussion of which will constitute part of the program. The last issue of the Hi Herald will be exhibited together with newspapers of other schools in the Association.

All members of the Hi Herald staff are invited to attend the meeting and it is hoped that a large delegation will be present.

Victory Ends Season

Belmont fell to Andover by a four point loss which polished off the season. Although Belmont never gained the lead, they put up a hard scrap, characteristic of their small team. Andover's ability to get off to a good score put them in the lead when the whistle blew at the half-way period, the score was 21-11. Andover's lack of baskets during the second half brought Belmont well up on the score. As in the previous game with Belmont, Andover's actual superiority was lacking. Belmont ventured within four points of the pace made by Andover, but were held easily as Andover sent the ball thru the net for the last tally of the 1937-38 season, with a 34-30 score. ## Our Homemakers Study Fabrics

This week the Homemaking A class is testing wools, cottons and silks in order to ascertain whether they are genuine or adulterated materials.

There are three types of fibers, namely vegetable, animal and synthetic. Cotton and linen are vegetable fibers, while wool and silk are animal fibers. Synthetic fibers are man-made fibers, derived from vegetable pulp and chemicals, such as rayon silk.

There are several different weaves in materials including plain, twill, satin and lappet weaves. Examples of them are: the plain, percale; the twill, serge; the satin, damask, of the lappet is dotted swiss.

The seventh grade girls are beginning their study of child care.

Flashes of Wit

Ernie B.: "Les has been sitting here doing nothing but wasting time."
Mrs. VanOxx: "How do you know?"
Ernie: "I've been sitting here watching him."

Mrs. McGee: "Did you know that George Washington threw a silver dollar across the Rappahannock?"
Montrose: "I can easily believe that. In some history book it said that Washington pitched his camp across the Delaware when the British were after him, and it was a lot wider than this."

Dick Clair: "Mr. Host, if the world is round and turns every twenty-four hours, what keeps us from falling off when it's upside down?"
Mr. Host: "Why, the law of gravitation."

Dick: "That's what I thought but I can't figure out how folks stuck on before that law was passed."

Jo Butler: "Hungary?"
Clyde B.: "Yes, Siam."
Jo: "All right, I'll figi."

Mr. McGee: "Your answers often remind me of Quebec."
Henry Antan: "How?"
Mr. McGee: "Built on a bluff."

Mrs. McGee: "What is a despot?"
Jack: "It's a place where the train comes in."

While correcting some English papers, Miss Cappuccilli found that one of the students wishes we could have a new "skat" rink. Another paper had "The dead man lied in bed."

Mrs. McGee (in history C class): "What was another result in the growth of farms?"
Don Hardy: "More farmers."

Highlights of the Basketball Season

By Donald Oakes

The Andover purple and white cagers brought the season to a close last Tuesday night. Eleven games were won and seven were lost, to make the average 61 per cent. This is fairly good considering the fact that a complete new team of players had to be chosen as all of the first team of last year were graduated in June, 1937.

However, the new team proved its efficiency by two wins over Wellsville and two over Angelica, who later became champions of this league. Close games were lost to Alfred and Canisteo. The Andover team lost its grip on the championship by losing a game to Angelica on a neutral court two weeks ago. Andover and Alfred are tied for second place in the Class C division for this county.

The leading scorer of the team was George Joyce, forward, who piled up a total of 172 points. He averaged 3.25 points per quarter played or 9.6 points per game. Antan, who had not been out for basketball before, held down the center position on the team and came in next in scoring. Third in the scoring line was Briggs. Dugan was fourth and Fulkerson fifth.

The best foul shooter on the team was Clyde Briggs, who made 60 per cent of his tries. Fulkerson and Hardy were next best. Henry Antan had the largest number of tries but only made one-third of them. Antan headed the list committing 33 fouls. He was followed by Briggs, Joyce, Dugan and Oakes.

The first team scored a total of 525 points to their opponents' total of 424. This averages up to 29.9 points per game to their opponents' 23.

It is certain that at least seven of the eleven players will be back for another year. They are Dugan, Briggs, Oakes, Greene, Fulkerson, Dolan and Saunders. If some of the graduates come back, it will brighten the prospects for a successful season next year.

Next year looks like a good year for the purple and white. It is hoped that they will be able to break the jinx and take first place instead of second, which Andover has had for the last six years.

The second team also completed a somewhat successful season by winning nine out of 14 games. They beat Alfred and Almond twice. The steady improvement of Saunders, Nobles and Bud Dolan showed that they will be strong candidates for the varsity squad next year.

Jack Saunders and Bud Dolan led the scoring with 24 points each. McAndrew, Dodge, Gath and Nobles followed. Gerald Wahl was the leading foul shooter with 100 per cent. Saunders, Dean and Reisman followed in foul shooting. Dizzy Dean committed the most personal fouls, 9, followed by Gath and Don Lynch.

The second team scored 145 points to opponents' 126. They averaged 12.1 points per game while their opponents averaged 10.5.

Grade News

The first grade welcomed two new pupils, Joseph Chase and Raymond Hardy, both from Limestone, N. Y. This makes a total of 41 in the first grade.

The second graders are studying Holland. Little Dutch boys and girls and windmills and toy tulips adorn the walls. The children are bringing pictures from home which include scenes of Holland, depicting Dutch life and landscapes. There is one picture in particular which would be worth your time to go down and see. It is a free-hand painting of a Dutch boy and girl skating. The exquisitely colored painting was done by Mrs. Hardy Bostley of Andover.

The sixth grade is looking forward to their geography class Friday when Miss Killigrew will discuss France with them, giving some of the sidelights in the lives of French boys and girls.

Senior Class Activities

At last the Seniors have decided on one desire—class rings! A very pretty ring was selected last Friday afternoon from a splendid collection brought to the school by Mr. Vars. It is believed that 15 members of the class will order these rings.

The remainder of the class, part of the masculine group, has also decided on a sweater that will soon lend color to the corridors and classrooms. The sweater was brought to the Senior class by Mr. Tuttle.

The Seniors, who are enthused with their selection are at last satisfied and content and soon will be sporting their rings and sweaters.

FOR LOVE OF A MANIAC
By Doris Honnegger

As a reporter for the "Times Herald" it was my duty to take a trip to Sing Sing, and get an article on a criminal who had been imprisoned for 20 years, and was to be freed the latter part of that week. Of course I was very pleased to have the opportunity to visit the prison and talk with one of its inmates, but just the same, I was a little afraid to go into the prison chamber with the man who was supposed to have murdered two young girls with a hammer. Nevertheless, I went to the prison in high spirits and courageously too, because I knew that the guards were near at hand.

When I finally found myself in the cell, what a surprise there was for me. Instead of a sinewy, dark, murderous villain, I saw a serious faced, white-haired man, who could easily have been my grandfather. The guards introduced me to him, and he took my hand in his, a slender, white and bony one that gave me the shudders as he bade me welcome in a feeble voice. His voice as he addressed me, seemed broken and rusty, like an iron door that had not been opened for years.

When I told him what I had come for, instead of being indifferent and tight-lipped as I had expected a murderer to be, I found that this old man of 55, tho he looked years older was delighted to talk with me in his slow monotone voice. Did I say monotone? Perhaps his voice was, but the words uttered by the voice were certainly anything but tiring. In the few hours I spent with him, I lived thru years of happiness, excitement and tragedy. As I listened to the tale this prisoner told, I learned the whole truth, and I'm positive it is the truth of this awful crime. Here is what I gleaned from the old man in nearly his own words:

"Twenty years ago I was brought to this room for the murder of those poor little girls. How I have suffered in these years of innocence."
"Innocent?" I thought aloud.
"Yes," he said, "God knows, I am innocent!"

"But your confession?" I gaped.
"Yes, I signed the confession but not because I did the crime. It was because I know who did it."

"Why didn't you tell and save yourself?" I groaned.
"A twinkle shown in his eyes as he replied: "Because my wife was guilty, but God help her, for she knew not what she was doing. Her mind often wandered and she would become a raging maniac. It had been so since the death of our little daughter. No one besides you has ever been acquainted with this fact. It makes no difference now for she is dead." The deep, sad expression came back into his countenance as he repeated the word "dead."

I gaped at him with my mouth wide open. "I am happy tho," he said, and smiling at me, continued: "For I have saved her from the chair, and that would certainly have been her fate. I knew I was safe from the horrible fate because I had destroyed all bits of evidence against her, and likewise, there was not enough against me to give me this gruesome sentence of the electric death."

Still gasping for breath, I asked him if he would be happy being free. He replied that he could be happy out in the world, but of course, he would mourn for his beloved wife.

Then I asked his permission to print his confession. When he discovered that I believed in him, he gave me his immediate consent, and once again the twinkle came into his eyes, and I actually believe he was laughing up his sleeve for having outsmarted the police.

After having astounded the entire police force with the valuable confession, I left the prison finding myself wholly in sympathy with the wise old man. I also left the prison with one more friend on my list, for the old man asked me to visit him as soon as he was situated in his daughter's home with the promise that I should see some of his paintings that he had done before the long years of his confinement.

Bowling Activities

Andover Bowlers Outpointed By Whitesville

After winning four points a week ago, the Andover bowling team allowed the Mobile Gas team of Whitesville to score a 3 to 1 victory over them Monday night. The defeat of the local team was due largely to poor bowling all thru. Harder rolled very well to a total of 502.
