Castle of Crusader Is

Old Belgian Landmark

Year in and year out Bouillon, Belgium entertains visitors to see the ancestral castle of Godfrey of Bouillon, one of the most famous of the Crusaders and owner of a miraculous sword, which was supposed to fly out of its scabbard automatically and slay infidels on sight.

The castle, which dominates the village, was old even when Godfrey went there over 800 years ago to be duke of the section, with Bouillon as the capital. He did not remain long however, for in 1096 he joined the first Crusade to recover the Holy Sepulchre, fighting with valor at the storming of Jerusalem in 1099.

The same year Godfrey was elected king of Jerusalem, but he refused that title and took instead the one of Defender of the Holy Sepulchre. Then, presumably with the help of his miraculous sword, which was later enshrined, he completed the conquest of the Holy Land by defeating the Sultan of Egypt, but never lived to return to Belgium for he died a year later.

Bouillon has other historic associations apart from those with Godfrey de Bouillon. Napoleon III stayed in the Hotel de la Poste there after he was defeated at Sedan, and Voltaire, Lafayette, the Empress Josephine, Victor Hugo and many others have visited the town.

Sponges Reproduce Like Certain Kinds of Fish

Sponges reproduce in a manner somewhat comparable with certain fish. Sponges have no lungs. The sponges we are familiar with are merely the skeletons of their living counterparts after the flesh is removed. They can breed and live only in warm water, the sponge capital of this country being Tarpon Springs, Florida.

The largest sponge ever known, according to a writer in the Los Angeles Times, measured about eight feet in diameter, but the largest commercial sponge is of the order of three feet in diameter. One of the latter, it is estimated, will soak up almost a ton of water, or well over 200 gallons.

A sponge authority says the most interesting thing about the animal is its prodigious ability to make currents in the water it inhabits. In life the space and orifices seen in the bath sponge are filled with the cells separated by tiny canals. The canals are lined with minute whip-like cells which keep the flowing water flowing in and out of the animal in a strong current.

Red Flag

Since 1791 the Red Flag has symbolized revolution. By a decree of the National Assembly then sitting in Paris, the waving of a red flag was to be the final warning to a disorderly mob before the National Guard opened fire. It was flourished that year on the Champ de Mars; the mob did not disperse; several were killed; and the Red Flag became their symbol. It was first hoisted in England by the mutinous sailors at the Nore in 1797. Russia was the first country to adopt it as the national flag though the idea was suggested in the Second French Republic in 1848. Lamartine, the poet and Liberal leader, rejected the proposal, saying: "The Tricolor has been carried in triumph round the world. The Red Flag has only been carried in shame round the Champs de Mars."

Birds, Reptiles Lay Eggs

One of the reasons zoologists think birds are descended from reptiles is because both birds and reptiles lay eggs. Fish, frogs and insects also lay eggs, but the eggs of birds and reptiles are very similar. Practically the only difference is that the eggs of the former have a hard outer shell, while those of the latter have only a tough skin.

LITTLE BITS OF HUMOR

A Mule Trade

A Texas frontiersman came into camp riding an old mule. "How much for th' mule?" asked a bystander.

"Just $100," answered the rider.

"I'll give you $5," said the bystander.

The rider stopped short as if in amazement and slowly dismounted. "Stranger," he said, "I ain't a-goin' to let a little matter of $95 stand between me an' a mule trade, the mule's yours."

Tactful

The manager of a stylish cafe was much embarrassed to see a stranger at one of his tables wearing a napkin in the old-fashioned way tucked under his chin.

Calling a waitress he asked her to suggest the removal as tactfully as possible. Five minutes later he almost fainted when the young lady posed in front of his customer and said seriously: "Shave or haircut, sir?"

Gold Diggers All

Vivian: "Did you notice all those oyster shells over there on the beach?" They reminded me that I once got a pearl out of an old oyster?"

Sally: "You did, eh? Well, my sister beat you. She once got a diamond out of an old oyster."

Optimistic

A prisoner had escaped from jail. Before his conviction he had been photographed in six different positions, and the six photographs were sent to the chief of police of a little English town where, it was believed, the man might be in hiding.

Scotland Yard heard nothing for a few days. Then a telegram arrived from the provincial town.

"Have received the photographs of the six men whose capture is desired. Have arrested five of them. The sixth is under observation and will doubtless be captured shortly."

Wait In Line

A retailer, on receiving the first delivery of a large order, was annoyed to find the goods not up to sample.

"Cancel my order immediately," he wired to the manufacturer.

They replied: "Regret cannot can-

The most effective way to control the tent caterpillar is to apply an arsenical spray to the foliage when it unfolds in the spring and the young caterpillars begin to feed. By the end of April, New York farm boys and girls will have set out more than 15,000,000 trees since the start of tree planting 13 years ago.
