Auto Junkyard Aid to Farmer

Can Build Easy-Running Wagons—May Solve the "Old Car" Problem, Says State College.

The auto junkyard may become another link in the tie between agriculture and industry as this untapped, potentially large market for old cars turns to the farm for an answer.

Reclamation of old cars has begun. Farmers need easy-running wagons, so they turn to the junkyard for materials. The result is a wagon on rubber-tired wheels. Only the frame, wheels, and tires are used, which, together with a little lumber and labor, builds a practical farm wagon.

A wagon was built by the department of agricultural engineering at Cornell University for only about $40. In building the wagon, the tongue or hitch was bolted securely to the front axle.

Prof. F. L. Fairbanks of the department, who was in charge of construction, says it is necessary to hold the springs down. In this wagon they were held down by a chain welded to the chassis.

"We feel that these wagons are good general farm wagons, not trailers to be used continually on the road," Professor Fairbanks says. The wagons can be fitted either with a box or hay rack on top. On a recent trip thru Alberta, Canada, one observer said he saw more than 100 such wagons in use.

Some farmers are reported interested in having exhibits at the New York State fair of made-at-home useful farm equipment, similar to the easy-running wagons.

Homemakers' Exchange of Helpful Household Hints and Recipes

Conducted by ELEANOR HOWE

Here is a perfectly splendid idea that "happened" all because the top of an old card table fell out: When making a hooked rug, tack the edges to the frame of a card table from which the top has been removed. The surplus rug may be rolled up and fastened to one side of the table. It takes but a few minutes to move the rug along after it has been worked. When desiring to put the rug away, simply fold up the legs of the ex-card table and slip it in the hall closet!

What mother has not known despair over the disorder created by the children's small toys, such as blocks, crayons, paper dolls and the like? To solve this difficulty, simply purchase or make a large shoe bag, and have the children keep their toys in the various pockets. This will not only mean less picking up, but the children will always be able to find their toys.

If your cooking equipment doesn't boast a ring mold for making attractive salads and refrigerator desserts, here's the way to make one. Fill a glass jar with crushed ice (chipped from the hard-frozen cake of ice in a modern ice refrigerator). Place this jar in the center of a deep round or square pan and pour the mixture to be molded around the jar. Chill. When set, simply remove the jar and invert the mold, first dipping the bottom of the pan in warm water.

When ironing, wear an old pair of cotton gloves with the fingers cut off and you will not have "iron" callouses on your hand.

Keep a preserve jar of cooked starch in your ice refrigerator for use when there are only one or two small items, such as a child's frock, to be washed. Dilute the starch as needed. It will keep perfectly until used up.
