Past Legion Commanders, All Alive and All Still Residents of Allegany County, Organize

Allegany county now has an organization unique in New York State. When a Past Commanders Association of the Allegany County American Legion was formed here recently, it was discovered that all 17 Past Commanders of the county Legion are not only alive, but all still residents of this county. No other county Legion organization in the State can duplicate this set of circumstances.

Of the 17 Past Commanders, 12 attended the organization meeting at the Moose Club in Wellsville. Joseph Herman, Wellsville, present County Commander, was a guest. The association will meet twice a year and is designed to keep former Legion leaders active in the work of the organization.

Standing —Neil S. Sullivan, Bolivar; Fay E. Boyd, Andover; Dr. Ivan G. Howe, Angelica; Arthur Burdick, Alfred; Dr. Frederick E. McCarty, Wellsville; C. A. Chipman, Bolivar; Ralph M. Wheeler, Cuba; H. B. Hitchcock, Bolivar.

Front Row J. Lloyd Parsons, Angelica; Joseph Herman, Wellsville, present County Commander; Clifford M. Potter, Alfred, chairman of the association; Earl Burdick, Belmont, secretary and treasurer of the association; Robert B. Frazer, Cuba. Absent—John Dolan, Andover; Raymond Lacey, Angelica; Ernest D. Hilary, Rushford, Victor R. Gaves, Friendship; Graydon L. Davis, Rushford.

LIBRARY NEWS

As a reading project in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades, a unique idea was followed over a ten-week period. Pupils reading one book or more each week from the Andover Free Library became pilots of airplanes with which to make a transcontinental air flight visiting several cities enroute.

Fifth Grade Report

The following pupils were pilots at least once during the trip across the United States, the first four pupils named were pilots all the way: Craig Snyder, Wilma Goodridge, Susan McAndrew, Marjorie Vars; Ronald Clark, Truman Coats, Kenneth Howland, Carlton Ordway, Walter Shimwell, Ferdinand Smith, Richard Steadman, Clarence Stearns, James Witter, Joseph Yannie, Alberta Cannon, Marlene Coats, Beatrice Dean, Florence Dodge, Jean Halsey, Clara Hann, Ann Harmon, Betty Joyce, Jean Kemp, Aletha Perry, Mareta Perry, Bernice Ray, Veronica Ray, Winifred Conner, Arretta Dunham.

Passenger list: James Gorsuch, Ferdinand Reisman, Martha McDonough, Frances Nelson, Ruth Post, Harold Joyce.

Nearly all of these pilots and passengers made the entire trip, either as pilots or passengers.

Lists of the pupils in the fourth and sixth grades who made this trip or a similar trip will be printed next week.

"Wandering Willie"

IT IS not the purpose of this column to dish out free advertising, but when it comes to the Red & Gun Club which is holding their membership drive at the present, well, we think they deserve to have a few things cleared up, or rather some of the fellows who intend to join but are "waiting to see what they is about" be straightened out.

In order to be recognized by the State Conservation Commission, we understand they have to have a certain membership, and the more the merrier. And some of the boys in town want to join but want to make sure they get their dollar's worth, for which we don't blame them. And then there are others that expect to see the dam at the pond erected over night, the carp cleaned out and the place stocked with everything from a small-mouthed whale to an electric eel by the middle of the next day.

All that sort of stuff takes time and money, and just because you or your uncle Zeke don't fish or hunt every afternoon or morning doesn't mean that your dollar will be lost. It is worth a dollar of any man's money to bring the pond back the way it used to be.

A FEW years ago Andover had a pretty neat little softball league in town, but last year it seemed to go flat right at the beginning. Why not get a bunch of you softball players together and see what would happen? About the only thing we can see that it lacks is someone to get the business started, after that it will almost take care of itself.

THE following poem which was handed us covers the Spring situation rather appropriately:

Spring Has Came

Winter is went
Spring are here
It happens that way
Every year.

The grass now grows
Thru vernal thaws
Much greener than
It ever was.

So let us lift
Our voice and sing
Like we was glad
'Cause it are spring.

Human Relations Conference Held At Alfred

Dr. Albert Beaven, Head of Rochester University, Addresses Group in Two Sessions Wednesday.

At the human relations conference held at Alfred University on Wednesday, two very significant addresses were given by Dr. Albert Beaven, president of Rochester University. The special subject was "Storm Centers in International Relations."

The morning address dealt with "The European Scene and the Hope of Democracy." After pointing out that human relations in general are determined by certain attitudes of mind and heart, the speaker specified the two main movements which are today contending for the mastery. There is the movement from without bearing down upon the individual and compelling his allegiance, the movement from some central personal force, which allows for no initiative or individual independence, which is the imposition of the power of dictatorship. The other is that movement working within the individual whereby he can determine for himself the lines of action he may take. The movement which makes for democracy, Dr. Beaven reminded the audience that Democracy had become enemic since the war, and that the post-war developments in Europe seriously imperiled its interests.

He stated that the use of dictatorship simply thrust back any effort for self-determination, and that the nearer we get to war, the less could we hope to retain our democracy. The people of Europe are tormented by fear, which arouses a state of mind at once pessimistic and hopeless. Dr Beaven reminded us that it is the intangibles which ultimately govern. The tangibles which men see and handle and use weaker and decay, while the intangibles, such as the emotions, the virtues or vices, rule in the lives of men. He said that the hotspots in Europe were not the clashing of guns and armament, and the outward expression of the views of the nations, but the states of mind for instance in Downing St., London, in Rome, in Berlin, where the political leaders are in the negative states of mind so to speak of panic reduce

Dr. Beaven very plainly declared that the policy of isolation for America could not be tolerated. When it comes to a showdown, the only real and worthy attitude must be one of co-operation.

The afternoon address dealt with "Recent Glimpses of the Oriental Scene." The speaker discussed Japan in particular. The one difficulty we have to contend with is the fact that Japan believes itself to be the one nation to set the world right. She is the divine son of the Emperor whom the Japanese rank as God, all other nations are merely human. This obsession of the Japanese promotes a total absence of fear of death with its corresponding ignoring of the real value of life. The speaker reminded us that 80 years ago Japan was a weak, insignificant nation, with no standing anywhere in the world. Today she has the third largest navy in the world. America has stupidly failed to fully grasp the real strength of Japan, else we would not have passed the exclusion act, and this has largely helped to develop whatever anti-pathy towards America that Japan may have.

Asked what he thought might be the outcome of the war in the East, Dr. Beaven quoted an influential friend who said that Japan has doubtless blundered in forcing such large bodies of soldiers so far in the interior, without safeguarding their interests from their base. China may induce them along by degrees into her territory until by sheer exhaustion and lack of finance, it is quite within the range of probability that Japan may ultimately lose. In world commerce, the speaker said, Japan was playing a more or less winning game, mainly by using her art, not as inventor, but as imitator of what other nations do, especially America. Again we were reminded that attitudes of antagonism are of no avail in dealing with the Oriental situation. There must be a friendly attitude shown if we are to accomplish anything that will help to promote amicable relations either in Europe or the Orient.

Very helpful discussions followed each address, a number of the intensely interested audience taking part.

There was luncheon at 12:30 p. m. and the sessions closed at 4:15 p. m.

R. P. Dean Transferred To Kentucky

In a letter to the News changing his address, we note with pleasure that R. Paul Dean has been promoted to division superintendent over the holdings and operations of the Ohio Oil Co., Inc., in western Kentucky. Mr. Dean, who has been with the Ohio Oil Co. for the past 28 years, was formerly located in Oblong, Ill.

He will now reside and maintain offices in Quesboro, Kentucky.

The old Gilt-Edge cheese factory known now as the John Schanback cheese factory at Friendship is installed in a new two-story building and operating without interruption. The factory produces a soft cheese that is sent directly to New York City. The old building which is being torn down is a landmark in that vicinity.

A variety shower is being held this Thursday evening by neighbors and friends for Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stewart of Scio, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis of Independence. Mrs. Stewart was formerly Miss Leona Tracy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tracy who are well known in this vicinity where they are frequent visitors.

GRANGE NEWS

Edith M. Thorne, Lecturer

Judge Hopkins was very much pleased with his audience Sunday evening, a large percentage being Grange members. The audience was stirred by his talk, "Good Morning Judge." We are proud of our county judge and appreciate his many kindnesses.

This week is Child Health's—Let's visit our library and see the display. Many of our business places will also feature displays. Let's keep in mind May 12th. An evening's program for parents and others interested in children will be held at the school house.

A large number of Andover Patrons went to Friendship Friday night attending Grange and putting on the following program, the theme being "The Heart and the Soul of the Constitution."

The Heart of the Constitution—"Insure Domestic Tranquility," so first numbers were on peace.

Grange Peace song; tableau, the Angel of Peace, with Peace Flag.

A reading, "Our Peace Flag," by Dorothy Schoonover.

Dialogue, "Father and son seeing "The Big Parade," Dewey Northrup Sr., and Dewey, Jr.

Pantomime, "Apparitions," Emmett Robinson, Mary Schoonover and others.

Duet, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson.

Talk, "Trade Treaties, Bluebirds of Peace or War Menaces?" Harry Smith.

Surprise feature.

Class quizz: America's Magna Charta, Fern Holroyd and class.

Reading, "The President's Proclamation, 150th Anniversary of the Constitution," Agnes Robinson.

Presentation of book, "The Story of the Constitution," Sol Bloom—by the Lecturer.

Reading of tableau, "The Triune of American Democracy," reader, Gertrude Schoonover, Nellie Mead, the Constitution; Nellie Green, Liberty; Lenna Church, the Flag.

Song, "Old Glory," by all.

Piano solo, Eleanor Northrup.

Poem, "Of the People, by the People, for the People," a great Lincoln poem, Wilbur D. Nesbit—by Bernadine Bridges.

Poem, "Laws," Edgar Guest—by the Lecturer.

Reading, extracts from "The Heart and Soul of the Constitution," Sol Bloom.

Song, "Faith of Our Fathers," all.

May we all agree with Sol Bloom that "the Constitution satisfies the aspirations of the heart; it feeds the human soul; it is complete expression of the spirit of the American people."

Will every Grange member make a special effort to come to Grange next Wednesday night, May 11th. The deputies will be with us. The Juveniles will put on their degree work at 7 p. m.; the subordinates at the regular hour. The program will deal with the second chapter in a book we are enacting, the title "Grange Morals." The second chapter will deal with the home, naturally the mother and child enters the picture. Come and hear the pleasing program we have planned for you.

The new six-story 400-bed hospital at the Veterans Home, Bath, will be dedicated with impressive ceremonies on National Hospital Day, May 12th.

The Alfred Sun is the first paper in the county to use rocket style of headlines. It has the effect of eliminating headlines and introduces the reader at first glance the main elements of the news.
