GRANGE NEWS
 Edith M. Thorne, Lecturer

The morning after the lecture, generally wishes that someone else would tout the publicity horn; yet gladly she assumes the task if thereby she may infer an indifferent patron or make the community Grange conscious.

The lecturer's work was greatly enhanced Wednesday night and the newly decorated room made even more attractive thru the kindness of the Rev. E. J. Cory who made a large screen to represent a book, "Grange Morale," painting thereon a beautiful scene of rural life.

From the pages of this book came living pictures to show that the Grange ever held high the standards of the home, the mother and child. Introducing the 2nd chapter was this quotation: "To develop a better and higher manhood among ourselves, we strive to make the farmer's home the brightest and happiest spot on earth." This was followed by two poems, "Who Rears Four Walls," by Clifford Burdick, and "Within Its Walls," by Mizpah Greene." A reading and skit, showing the versatile Grange Mothers of '38, Cassie Walsh, reader, others in the skit being Mesdames Lehman, Mead, Schoonover, Robinson, Northrup, Updyke, Carr, Spicer, Cannon and Gilfillan. A vocal solo, "That Little Mother of Mine," Raymond Lehman; another skit, "Entwining Our Children with Good Habits," Esther Meade and six other mothers followed by "Onward Grange Mothers," closing with another home scene showing Lloyd Mead's family and Carrol Burdick chatting about the 4-H Potato Club work; "Prevention of Diphtheria," interspersed with jokes followed. To modern Grange mothers may be given much of the credit for the place that the farmers occupy in our National life. They are the ones that shall keep the home fires burning and hold Grange standards ever high.

The State Grange Deputies, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wightman of Inavale were honored guests. Mrs. Wightman was very much pleased with the work of the Juveniles under the direction of their Matron, Miss Doris Baker. The Master of Petroli, Arthur Genung and Mr. and Mrs. Card of Inavale were other guests.

 Actress: "Is the young man tall, dark and handsome?"
 Director: "Yes, why?"
 Actress: "Then he won't need any rope."
