GRANGE NEWS

Edith M. Thomas, Lecturer

Altho but two numbers materialized as planned on the program, yet we had a good meeting with ten seventh-degree members, 12 sixth-degree and all but one belonging to the degree of Pomona present.

A brief report of the happenings of the 66th session of New York State Grange meeting at Jamestown showed that seven of Allegany county's delegates played important roles on different committees. A radio report to the effect that the delegation was split on the matter of the St. Lawrence Waterways came over WHAM.

Charles Robinson, in a brief but concise manner, told of the stand taken by the leaders of the two outstanding farm organizations on the AAA program of crop control, marketing, etc. The Grange leader, Louis J. Taber, was speaking for the entire Grange all over the United States, while the Farm Bureau was the southern division just meeting in New Orleans.

Clifford Burdick's side won over Ames Rogers in a nut target game. The two highest contestants were tied. Guess who, none other than Annette and Ruth Taylor.

According to the judges, Ames Rogers, Raymond Lehman and Chas. Rogers, Edna Burdick, gave the most original worthwhile Christmas suggestion. Was it because it was sandy and the judges were men? (We wonder). At any rate she has promised them some candy.

A paper, written by Hervey S. Thorne on "The Value of Grange Mental Rehabilitation" appeared to all to put much into the Grange work that we might be gotten out of it.

The Christmas party and program is still in the hands of the past officers and past masters. The committee chairman, Ruth Taylor, was appointed chairman of the Christmas committee and Edith M. Thorne of the living room for the serving of the Christmas League dinner.
