Waftings From WANDERING WILLIE

IF a fellow believed all he heard concerning the now-famous well on Crandall's farm he would be tempted to move into some quiet and peaceful country like Norway or Sweden where he would be safe. Some folks are certain they got the right "tip" from some other person who was related to some other person who works up at the well or some wheres within a mile of it, and they "just know" that it is as they say.

But, according to the more experienced hunters in the village, woodchuck hunting up there will be pie this summer as the chucks are now all stone deaf and with so much salt in the air most of them have become terribly near-sighted.

The deer are all minus their horns as the salt made tears in their eyes, and when they were running away from the roar of the well ran into trees and knocked them off.

When the well first broke thru the ground all the woodchucks nearby that were still hibernating were blown out of their holes, in some instances 1700 feet into the air.

All the boys up there working in the salt water so much now have a bad case of "dish-pan hands."

The Empire boys have been all good boys for the past couple of weeks with nothing to do but work after breakfast, after dinner and after supper, with hardly time for even an "eye-opener." But it helps the ole pocket book according to most of 'em.

The cows in that section all agree that as soon as the well is plugged in they will never taste salt again as they get it ten times a day.

The gassy boys are also getting much experience in making mud pies and believe us, when they make a mud pie it is some pie. Some of the pies stirred up on that hill will weigh around 100 ton. (We haven't found out yet who does the stirring.)

And last but not least, Clara Childs has made enough sandwiches, if piled one on top of the other with the coffee poured in to hold them down, would plug three ordinary gas wells, but we have not heard of any of the sandwiches going down the well—but they do go down the hatch.

The well has blown holes in the earth anywhere from four and three-eighths inches across to nine and eleven-sixths rods (according to the one telling the story) and according to others the laborers have poked anything from sugar to toothpicks down the hole.

Now we don't know how much of this to believe, and you folks can sort it over and pick out what you wish. We don't give a hoot!

OH, by the way, if you hear a strange noise going up the street in a cloud of vapor or dust, and you are not just certain as to what it is you can take a good guess that it's Rollie Shaff's new jalopy. We heard he purchased one. What's the color scheme for the Model A this trip Rollie?

HERE is another missile from the now-famous Hollow:

Dear Willie:

Just to show what a little advertising will do for a community, since the people heard about Chicken Hollow, the population is increasing by leaps and bounds. We are having the biggest building boom since after the Civil War (when most of our houses were built).

George Baker is finishing a new residence at the corner of Chicken Hollow and some unknown street.

Grant Fuller moved into the Hollow and brought his house with him. "Scottie" Scott has purchased a tract of land at the head of the Hollow. He is moving his house from River street to his new place. He expects to raise sheep and strawberries. Joe Monroe and his mules are digging a cellar for Lawrence Hann, who is building this spring.

Our only industry except raising chickens is the Kemp Bros. Evaporator Works, which is running full time. They now employ four men. They are dickering with Alderson about having the Erie run a switch up the Hollow so they can load syrup in tank cars. (They say trucking is too slow and expensive).

Chicken Hollow now boasts six firemen. Last winter when the snow was the deepest we had a chimney fire. The boys didn't call the Fire Department, but just grabbed their shovels and heaved snow down the chimney, which shows that smart firemen can handle a fire when the chief is not present.

We have a number of good building lots for sale now. You people in the village who don't like your street or neighbors are welcome to Chicken Hollow, regardless of sex, breed or color. Drive up some time and talk it over.

Hornell Girl Found In Rochester

A fire-day search for Miss Margaret Thayer, 16, of Hornell ended Monday afternoon, when the girl was located working as a domestic in Rochester. She has returned to her home in Hornell.

Arling R. Baker - Andover, N. Y.

Dice Cartwright is among those ill with gripe.

Dates for the Wyoming county firemen's convention have been announced for July 23 and 24 at Arcade.

Mrs. Nellie M. Batt, 49, of Angelica was fined $100 and placed on probation on a charge of forging prescriptions for morphine tablets.

John Mitchell, who makes his home with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith, was able to be on the streets again this week after being shut-in during the cold weather.

Andover friends have received cards from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cronk of Wellsville announcing the arrival of a 7½ pound daughter, Frances Marion, April 8th. Mrs. Cronk was formerly Miss Annette Clifford, a teacher in our school.

A fine rainbow trout caught near Hammondsport Sunday by Harold (Slim) Lehman was on display in Wade's Restaurant window Monday. The fish tipped the scales at eight pounds. Reports by game wardens Wednesday were to the effect that the trout had spawned and were now on their way back to the lake and this week-end would undoubtedly be the end of the rainbow trout fishing for this season.

Savings bank deposits in New York State have again reached a new all-time high, according to a statement issued this week by the Savings Banks Association of the State of New York. The total of deposit liabilities in the 124 mutual savings banks in the State on March 31st was $5,675,501,790 or $76,577,914 greater than on December 31st, 1939 when the previous high in savings bank deposits was reached.

A play, "The Alabaster Cruise," was put on at the Baptist church at the regular Sunday evening service. It was a stewardship play with Mrs. Everett Clair director. The characters were as follows: Joan Porter, a modern young lady, Dorothy Schoonover; her mother, Mrs. Porter, Doris Baker; her aunt Alice, Carrie Slade; Sue, girl friend of Joan, Helen Wilkins; neighbor woman, Fannie T. Lehman. There was a good attendance.
