Superphosphate For Pastures

Belmont, N. Y., May 4.—There is a possibility that superphosphate will be furnished in lieu of payment as lime is at present, but it will not be available to those who have not signed up either at the community meetings held during March, or at the Farm Bureau office at Belmont. The superphosphate which will be bid and handled by local feed and fertilizer dealers will be used only for pasture improvement work, it is expected, and will be handled much the same as ground limestone is at present.

On most farms plans have been made to use the entire soil building allowance and in many cases the reforestation allowance will also be used. Filing a work sheet, however, does not bind anyone to carrying out any of the soil building practices, but no application for practice payments will be received where the farm has not been signed up. Farms signed up by May 31 may carry out practices any time before Nov. 1.

AROUND OUR HOUSE PICNIC SANDWICHES

Spring brings thoughts of picnics to boys and girls and picnics mean easily carried lunches, including sandwiches.

Fillings for good sandwiches may be made of various nourishing foods such as eggs, fish, meat or poultry, cheese, vegetables, peanut butter or dried fruits. The following combinations make good fillings, says the New York State college of home economics:

EGGS: Chopped hard-cooked eggs with celery or cabbage and salad dressing; chopped hard-cooked egg with chopped pickle; sliced hard-cooked egg with lettuce and salad dressing; scrambled eggs and crisp bacon.

FISH: Flaked salmon, or tuna fish, with cabbage, onion, and salad dressing; sardines, chopped and mixed with watercress and salad dressing.

CHEESE: Ground American cheese with cream to moisten, pickles, nuts or pimento; cottage cheese on one buttered slice and jam or honey or marmalade on the other buttered slice; cottage cheese with carrots, diced onions, chopped nuts, crisp diced bacon, and salad dressing; cream cheese and shredded pineapple or dates or nuts.

VEGETABLE: Lettuce, or shredded cabbage, or raw spinach or watercress or diced celery mixed with salad dressing; lettuce, tomatoes and cucumber; shredded cabbage and carrot; grated carrot and chopped raisin.

PEANUT BUTTER: Peanut butter mixed with jam, jelly, marmalade, or honey; peanut butter mixed with ground dried fruits; peanut butter mixed with mashed banana; peanut butter mixed with shredded carrots.

DRIED FRUIT: Raisins and nuts ground and moistened with cream two-thirds raw carrots and one-third dried fruits and salad dressing.

"What are the names of your four children, Mandy?"
"Eenie, Meenie, Mine and Henry."
"Why did you name the youngest one Henry?"
"Cause we don't want no Mo."

FARMER BUILT AND LIKED IT

Ventilation System Saved the Day, at 35 Degrees Below Zero.

The classic story about ventilating a stable and still having it warm comes from Ulster county. The county agent planned the ventilation system and the farmer built it and liked it.

One morning several years ago it seemed so cold when the farmer left his house at 4 o'clock in the morning to do his chores that he looked at the thermometer. Phew!—35 degrees below zero!

He ran to the barn expecting to find everything frozen. To his surprise and joy he found several cows drinking and heard his water pump running. He dashed back to the house and called the county agent.

"Hello," he shouted into the phone. "My stable is fine," and before the agent could ask who was calling, from where, or why, the farmer had hung up and run back to the barn.

Now is the time, before hay is put in the mow, to build that ventilation system for the stable, says Professor A. M. Goodman of the department of agricultural engineering at Cornell. "It will make the stable a better place for work and more healthful for the cows. It will assure a dry stable and roof next winter."

For more information, interested New York dairymen may receive a free copy of Cornell bulletin E-151 on dairy-stable ventilation. Write to the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

DISH FOR THIS WEEK

Young and tender dandelion greens, as well as beet tops, leeks, spinach, and other similar greens, are delicious when used in the following recipe suggested by the New York State College of home economics:

Stuffed Greens
Prepare about two pounds of greens and cook them until tender. Drain them, chop them fine and add salt, pepper, and butter to taste. There should be one quart of greens after they are chopped. Put one-half the greens on a greased baking pan and flatten them with a spoon to form a layer. Cover with a layer of stuffing about one inch in depth. Cover with the remainder of the greens, flattening the top layer to cover the stuffing. Place three thin slices of bacon across the top. Bake in a moderate oven (350 to 400 degrees F.) for 20 minutes. Serve on a hot platter surrounded with horse-radish or cheese sauce.

Stuffed Menu:
Stuffed greens, scrambled or poached eggs, pickled beets, hot muffins and jam, cornstarch pudding, milk at least for the children, and tea or coffee for adults.

FRUIT, FLOWERS AND GARDEN

MONEY IN THE GARDEN

Last year, a 4-H Club girl in Wayne county decided to see how much money she could save her family by growing their vegetables. There were four in the family: her father, mother, brother and herself. In a vegetable garden of about a quarter-acre, she produced $178.66 worth of food.

This does not mean that she could have sold these vegetables for that much money. It represents what those vegetables would have cost if they had been bought in the village four miles away. The family not only made a saving but had vegetables of good quality fresh from the garden.

Another way to look at gardening is that "health is wealth." Both doctors and food experts agree that the health bill can be kept to a minimum by eating the proper foods, including a wide variety of vegetables.

Cornell has a bulletin called "The Home Garden." The number is E-344. It tells how to plan the garden; how to plant it, cultivate it, water it; how to control insects and diseases; and how to meet the requirements of individual crops.

Single copies of this bulletin are free to New York State residents and may be had from the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

An apple blossom festival at Kingston, May 11th, will welcome spring in the Hudson Valley.

A. C. S. to Appear At Music Festival

With the arrival of May comes the time for the annual Music Festival at Houghton at which the girls' chorus and the orchestra will appear. The festival will last three days, the 16th, 17th and 18th, being Choral Day, Orchestra Day and Band Day, respectively.

Both organizations are working to improve themselves as much as possible between now and then with the desire of receiving as fine a rating as did the band at its festival some time ago.
