Salutatorian Address

MISS CAROL WALTON

Members of the Board of Education, faculty, parents, classmates and friends:

On behalf of the graduation Class of 1940, I extend a hearty welcome. Tonight we meet here together to commemorate an auspicious occasion, one not only of another graduation but as you fully realize it is a time of dedication of a new edifice to the training of young people for the problems of an unknown future.

Today is a day when we as a nation, we as a people, must be prepared. Education is a preparatory school for life. We have been privileged to obtain this preparation for life in a democratic country, where education of young people is greatly encouraged. How different is our opportunity compared to that of those students in foreign countries. We are trained to have original thoughts and encouraged to express them. The stifling of all original ideas as in Europe means the death of culture and civilization. We are deeply grateful for the privilege that has been ours in being able to attend school in a free land. God grant that our under-classesmen enjoy with surety the advantage that this Andover school can offer.

We suggest that our class motto be also that of our educational nation: "Our aim, success; our hope, to win."

We, the Class of 1940, are proud to have our Commencement exercises in this beautiful building and are honored to have you here. So again to each one of you, we extend a sincere welcome.

Valedictory Address

MISS PEARL GOODRIDGE

Honored guests, members of the Board of Education and faculty, parents, classmates and friends:

It becomes my sad duty at this time to speak a few words of farewell in behalf of the Class of 1940. It is a signal honor for me to be allowed to speak here this evening; but I speak with a heavy heart, for I realize that we are now parting with many friends of our school days and that we are going out into a depression-ridden and war-torn world.

Our class is deeply appreciative of the honor bestowed upon it of having its Commencement exercises coincide with the dedication of this magnificent school building. As we gaze at this beautiful educational project, we are deeply cognizant of the good fortune that is ours to be living in the United States. In America the government aids the community in erecting outstanding buildings, similar to this new school of ours. In Europe, deadly bombs destroy human life as well as the beauty exemplified in buildings. We are graduating from a school which has instructed us in liberal studies and has taught us to think for ourselves and to meet life's problems in a self-reliant manner. In Europe the regimentation of youth is carried on to an extreme. There is no place for original thought, and no one dares to express an opinion contrary to that of the leaders of the countries. Young people leave their educational institutions with their minds marching in "mental goose-step" to the commands of the dictator. We may reverently thank our Creator that we live, not in a totalitarian state, but under a democratic form of government.

Under the kindly direction of our principal, and the skilled leadership of our teachers, we have finished the work prescribed for us and will receive our diplomas which symbolize our work as satisfactorily completed. To our principal and our patient, persevering teachers, who have aided us thus far on our way, we owe more a debt of gratitude than any words could express. You have fitted us for our vocations and have given us inspiration.

To the Board of Education who have provided us with this excellent school, we extend a heartfelt gratitude for enabling us to begin the acquisition of our life education.

We owe much to our under-classesmen who have co-operated with us to attain this eventful climax of our school life. We hope they will miss our departure and will work hard to attain the goal which we have attained. We regret that we will not be here to share in the work of the new school; but we sincerely hope that they will highly respect the building and its work as we would if we were here.

To the townspeople, who have willingly helped us in our many projects throughout our years in high school, we extend sincere appreciation. They have always been ready and willing to give to us anything to make our events successful.

To our parents, who have sacrificed for our educational achievement, we express our appreciation. Without their help and encouragement, our efforts would have been useless.

Classmates, after tonight each of us will be going different ways. Although time and space may divide us, we will always be joined in heart and spirit and will never forget the cherished days spent together in Andover High School. May everyone here tonight remember only our virtues, forget our faults, and in the future years have kind recollections of those, who here tonight bid you good-night and good-bye.

Correction

The name of Barbara Temple was omitted by error from the list of those passing English IV in last week's Hi Herald. Miss Temple's mark in that subject was 77.

Johnny was in the habit of swearing mildly when anything didn't please him. One day the minister heard him and said: "Johnny, don't you know you must not swear. It's naughty of you to do so. Why, every time I hear you swear, a cold chill runs down my back."

"That's nothing," said Johnny. "If you'd been at our house the other day when ma caught her fingers in the clothes wringer you'd have froze to death!"

FRUIT, FLOWERS AND GARDEN

DON'T CULTIVATE TOO OFTEN

G. J. Ralsigh

One of the problems which all vegetable growers have to face is that of weed control, and the necessary labor accounts for one of the large items in the cost of production. Cultivating the soil is one of the best ways to control weeds.

More than 15 years of experimental work at the Long Island vegetable research farm and at Cornell indicate that it is not necessary to cultivate more than enough to control weeds. Added cultivation adds to the cost and may injure the roots of vegetable plants.

The time to destroy weeds is while they are small and before they injure the crop plants. The most efficient cultivator for weed control is one that cuts off the weeds just below the surface of the soil. Such a cultivator does not destroy many roots.

Extend Honor to College Director

Floora Rose, retiring director of the New York State College of Home Economics, was honored by faculty students and friends at a recent testimonial dinner at Cornell.

She leaves, in October, the first college of home economics founded in the east, and the second in the United States. Coming to Cornell in 1907 as a lecturer, Miss Rose worked with Martha Van Rensselaer throughout the years to develop home economics education. They served as co-directors when the college was organized, after it developed from first a six-weeks course, next a department, and then a school. Miss Van Rensselaer died in 1932.

An oil painting of Miss Rose, by Olaf Brauner, professor emeritus of Cornell, was given to the college by its staff.
