ROOFING REPAIR TIME! These hot days, cool nights and just enough moisture to excite impatience aren't going to last forever! Some day there will come a change with plenty of rain and a temperature to chill us thru. Summers are more or less hard on roofs. Wood shingles will split and curl, warp away from flashing so that driving storms of rain and snow will find easy access to interiors, producing decay to structure and damage to contents. This is true also of metal and prepared roofings. We urge you to take advantage of these pleasant days to go over your buildings, search out and repair at all points that appear likely to
