How You Can Support the War

INCOME tax payments on March 15th were reduced by the widespread impression that some Congressional magic would make it unnecessary for many citizens to pay-their income taxes.

Be this as it may, the Treasury Department will ask the banks, business houses and people of this country for a loan of thirteen billion dollars next

Following closely upon the $12,000,000,000 borrowed in December, the new loan indicates that every citizen will have a chance to participate in the war. While no man's dollar will kill an enemy of this country, money will provide the weapons to protect our fighting men and enable them to do their stuff at a minimum risk.

There is no use for us to fool ourselves. The war is a costly enterprise and loyal Americans will liberally share their funds with the government, even if they cannot get to the firing line.

Cranks Prevent Accidents

THE head of the house who is usually very careful about preventing or avoiding situations and conditions that might cause accidents is generally regarded as a crank by other members of the family.

Accident statistics, however, warn us that the home is one of the places where we are most likely to Sgt. Victor Yannie be injured. Apparently, carelessness about small Staff Sgt. Emilio Yannie matters often leads to serious injuries.

This is apparent in the number of fires that take the lives of small children thruout the United States. It is frequent to read news stories telling of the death of an entire family, wiped out by a blaze that swept, thru the family dwelling during the quiet hours of

It may seem absurd to keep an eye on the fire! that is left burning when the family retires but it better to be over-cautious than to be burned to death. That more families are not snuffed out by fire is probably due to the activities of a "crank" around the house. More power to him, or her, as the case may be.

Modern Buck Passing

THE habit of laying the blame for life's predica-1 ments goes back to the story of Paradise lost, where Adam blamed Eve for his situation, and she blamed the serpent.

The technique has not differed to this day, when men and women well pleased with themselves accept full credit, but lay their misfortune to others when forced to pay the price of folly.

To meet someone in trouble and have him exclaim, 'It is every bit my fault," would be a novelty. Or to have another comment on his good fortune thus! "Really, I can't claim much personal credit for this!"

would be still more of a novelty. Human beings are quick to claim praise, slow to admit blame, and inclined to make others, including their Creator, bear the loss for shortcomings of char-l
