It is an ironical fact that the man who cares for his car like an only child will very often not hesitate to leave that car in a garage alive with fire hazards. And the housewife who guards with similar diligence the welfare of the electric range or refrigerator, will | EVERYTIME blithely disregard the commonest fire hazards such as frayed wiring, trash in the attic, open fireplaces and carelessly strewn matches.

Fire prevention, like charity, should start a home and spread in widening circles until each person is doing his utmost to prevent destructive fire anywhere in his community. Fire department officials are only too glad to point out potential hazards to the uninformed.

Start now to protect your irreplaceables against fire. Tomorrow may be too late.
