THE Department of Agriculture warns home- least a foot away from all eleccanners to avoid the use of "canning powders" and tric house wiring, appliance cords chemical preservatives.

Agricultural experts say that "the safe way for engineer." the home-canner is to process foods adequately with

Backing this warning, W. B. Campbell, Commissioner of the Federal Food and Drug Administration, declares that the present war emergency does not offer "any valid reason for condoning the use of chemical preservatives by home-canners in place of tested and approved processes of heat sterilization."

Mr. Campbell says that the substances proposed are of limited value, that some have known harmful effects and others are of doubtful safety.

Now that the people have learned to co-operate in war work, for the common good, why not remember the lesson when the emergency is over and work' for deserving public causes after the war?

The individual who attempts to reform the entire human race has an exaggerated opinion of his, or her, ability.

There are no rules that apply to every human being and no human being that obeys all the rules.
