The brightest fruit on the bough:

The peaceable fruit for your hands to pluck,

The Peaceable Fruit

Whatever your sorrow now,

Whatever the load you bear,

Of the land will be waiting there.

Though dark the way may seem,

Where the golden apples gleam.

Let no bitterness trouble your heart,

The gold and the scarlet, rain-washed fruit

Of peace will be yours at last.

For after the night is past,

After the storm the golden fruit
