FRUIT VALUES in New York state declined twenty per cent n 1951 from the previous year, although still above the ten-year (1940-1949), according from the N. Y. S. Department (Agriculture and Markets. Vineyards and orchards produced 591. crops: apples, peaches, pears, cherries and grapes, last year, seven per cent below the pre-vious year's yield.

FARM LEGISLATION in Washington during the second session of the 82nd Congress will probably take the form of mostl for the farmer, but neither major party, in an election year, expected to push for anythi that will upset a large number of farm votes. OPS policies will be under fire by the major farm organization, but the law is expected to be renewed when it expires June 30th. Mike DiSalle, whose policies have been unpop-
