But let's stop, look and listen first! Of the 35,000 fatalities on the highways in 1950, 14,310, or over four in every ten, were killed on Saturdays and Sundays. 644,200 more were injured or maimed for life. Last year the toll was even higher.

When you start out for a family week-end of fun, the Wheel of Fate is right between your hands! One slight swing of that wheel can pull you over the line and into the danger zone of oncoming traffic—into tragedy and death.

Hurry-up week-end and holiday driving, riding bumper-to-bumper at hazardous speeds, leaves no leeway for split-second action. The wheel may be only a dead stick in your hands. You've seen pile-ups on the highway—three, five, seven or eight cars telescoped into junk when a car ahead blew a tire and the wheel went out of control. And you've thanked your lucky stars your family was safe—that time!

So when you and Mom and Jack and Mary go week-ending on the highways, respect that Wheel of Fate in your hands. Use it to guide your family home—alive!

Food Poisoning

Food poisoning isn't only a summer hazard. Unfortunately, there is an outbreak of food poisoning in some section of the country s most every day of the year. the possibilities of food spoiling and contamination are likely to increase in summer quantities of food are prepared "ahead of time" for picnics, suppers, etc. It seems strange that people get sick and sometimes die of food poisoning in a nation proud of its sanitation laws and refrigeration facilities. But modern laws and facilities cannot always protect food which is prepared or served carelessly.

In every season, food should always be prepared under the most sanitary conditions possible. Utensils should be scrupuolusly clean sterilized if possible. The person preparing the food should, course, have clean hands and fingernails. People with contagious disease—even colds—or those suffering skin ailments should never prepare or serve food.

Prepared food that is not eaten immediately should be carefully refrigerated until served, particularly in warm, humid weather. The majority of food poisoning disasters can be traced back to a lack of proper refrigeration.

Most of the harmful bacteria which get into food and produce temperature," the usual degree of warmth in an average kitchen, en--courages the growth and toxic powers of the harmful organisms While the cold of refrigeration does not kill these germs outright

But an analysis of food poisoning cases; one state recently revealed that improperly prepared or refrigerated meat products, cream or custard filled pastries, poultry, and milk or milk products were the .. major sources.
