The PLAYGROUND BREEZE

Only Publication in the World That Cares About the Andover Playground

Cowboy, Cowgirl and By Dixie Appier

Last Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 the Andover Playground was invaded by a band of 17 cowboys and cowgirls and a tribe of In-

They paraded down Elm street to Main street following Mrs. Dorothy Grossman in her car. The Indians did a war dance around the cowboys and cowgirls in front of Clair's Pharmacy. After The final score, however, read the dance Coach gave each of them a fudgesycle. They then loosely played contest with Richparaded back to school. They sat around a campfire and first smoked a pipe-of-peace, then told stories. After this the Indians attacked the cowboys until they captured 5 cowboys, then the cowboys attacked the Indians. Some of the outstanding costumes were: Judy Carr had a horse made of a broom stick and a stocking. Judy Baker was a sqaw with a papoose in an oatmeal box held by a band on her head. Bobby McClure, Garth Hulin and Jimmy Appier had on beautiful headdresses. Danny Stackwick had on a new red cowboy hat. Billy Grossman was dressed in a black and white cowboy outfit. Sharon Strouse and Judy Brundage came dressed as the Dale Evan's Sisters, Jimmy Mulholland was a minature Hopalong. Lyle Nye and Larry House were the masked bandits. Richard Baker had made his own bow and arrow, Brian Frizell also made one Harold Sabin had an outfit to copy Gene Autrey with his sister Sue as Dale Evans. Rita Lunn was another of the cowgirls. Joey Carr, one of the tribe had a drum or tom tom.

After the attacks they had a campfire and the Indians made a sneak attack on the cowboys but they lost and about 5 o'clock they all went home safe and tired.

Outdoor Cooking

When we went on our last hike we had to build a fire. We found a place and cleared off the grass. Then we found some stones to build a fireplace. We built ; about a half of foot high, then we put in dirt and little stones in the cracks. While we were doing that, a few kids gathered up sticks and made a pile of them. We put paper in the hottom of the fireplace and added some kindling wood then lite the fire. Some of the good food we had to cook over this fire was hot dogs, hamburgers in tinfoil, hamburgers

After using the fire we made sure that it was completely out by
