"In the days when our ancestors used dim candles to light their way in the dark, tuberculosis was a terrifying disease for which there seemed to be no hope." she recalled. "In this age of scientific progress, when we merely touch a button for light, we have more than hope. We have the weapons to defeat tuberculosis, if we will but use them."

Mrs. Stout compared the work of the tuberculosis association to the flame of a candle lighting up the dark corners of ignorance.

"We can all draw inspiration from the candle on the Seal to work together to wipe out tuberculosis in this county," she con-"When we buy Christmas The weather was in their favor Seals we are taking part in the as they didn't need top coats and war against tuberculosis.
