While in Washington, we seniors visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier which is most impressive especially after one has seen the changing of the guards.

After World War I, officials of the United States found that the bodies of many soldiers killed in battle could not be identified. The governments of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy and United States decided to honor in some special way the memory of these soldiers. Each government chose a symbolic unknown soldier, buried his remains near the National Capitol and built a monument in his honor.

The Unknown Soldier of the United States was one of four war dead taken from American cemeteries in France. An American Soldier, Sergeant Alvin York, a British Soldier, Sergeant John G. Barrett, a French Soldier, Sergeant Joseph Weyand, and a German Soldier, Sergeant Heinrich Warntje, were brought to the United States Capitol to lie in state. On Armistice Day, November 11, 1921, they were buried in Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia, across the Potomac River from Washington, D. C. The tomb, completed 10 years later, has a white marble sarcophagus over the grave bearing the inscription, "Here rests in honored glory an American Soldier Known but to God".

The respect shown to this soldier, as he represented all those who died for the cause of peace made each of us realize the respect we owe to every Soldier who has ever served. It is serving and will serve for the American cause.

Senior Interview

This week's Senior was born on December 21, 1948. She has two brothers and a sister. Thoroughbred high school, math and science have been her major. She has also been very active in F.H.A., Hi Herald, G.A.A., Library Council, Student Council, and Cheerleading. She has also had a part in her Junior and Senior year. The great honors of being chosen for the National Honor Society and the Oratorical contest have also been bestowed upon her.

Some of her favorites are color, green; food, pork; subject, math; movie, "West Side Story"; and book, "To Kill a Mockingbird". She has always heard saying "Oh rats". Her pet peeve is people who don't know what they are talking about. The philosophy she lives by is "Enjoy Yourself".

Now do you know our mystery guest? She is the Valedictorian of the Class of 1966. She is Miss Martha Lou Lynch, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Lynch. Martha has been accepted at Alfred State Tech and will pursue an Executive Secretarial course there. Congratulations, Martha, on your many achievements.

F. B. I. Building. Our guide showed us pictures of the ten most wanted men in the United States and one picture had "captured" written across it. The guide told us that two days before a lady had toured the building and when she was shown the pictures, she noticed one of the ten men. She told the guide it was her neighbor. She gave detectives his address and he was arrested two hours later.

It is hard to say what impressed me the most about our trip. Our tour through the F.B.I. Building was very interesting. The guide gave quite a thorough explanation of the various departments. Exhibits that showed how various crimes had been solved were displayed throughout the building. Our guide explained these and also showed how the criminals had planned their crimes. Upon leaving the building, we had the impression that there is no such thing as the perfect crime.

The F.B.I. Building was one of the most interesting of all the buildings we saw. Our guide gave us a very good tour and told us all the points of interest. We saw the labs where pieces of hair, rugs, blood, or anything is matched up with a victim to prove the suspect had been there. We also saw posters of the ten most notorious men in American history and their relating to the most daring crimes in history. The guide showed us the criminal files, and weapons used by the F.B.I.

After the main tour was over we went to the pistol range where we watched an F.B.I. agent practice shooting. The building itself is very impressive especially from the area in the center of the circular building. There, there is a beautiful fountain which is enclosed by various plants. This tour is one of the most enjoyable evenings in Washington, D. C. The classes danced to the music of the "Cliques" for twenty miles each way.

On our Senior trip to Washington, D. C., I was most impressed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. It took about a half hour of waiting in line before we could get through the gate to the entrance. One thing I noticed were the score of policemen scattered throughout the building. In this particular building they printed various postage stamps and paper money in one, five, ten and twenty dollar denominations. The whole tour through the place was conducted in narrow hallways with windows on either side. These hallways were raised above and directly overhead the workers so that we could see them in action. The hallways were arranged so that we observed each step in its progressive order. At the end were the storerooms where the finished money was inspected, packaged, and stacked. Thirty-five million dollars worth of currency is shipped out every day. We saw the biggest share of it stacked in huge piles.

The most interesting building we went through was the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. The thing that impressed me the most was how fast the money could be made. They print over thirty million dollars a day. Another thing that impressed me was the size of the machines. They were approximately the size of a tractor trailer. One thing I didn't like, was watching them throw away thousands of dollars just because they were wrinkled.

The most impressive sight that I saw in Washington was the Washington Monument. With my roommates, I started to see the sights on our second night. We headed for the Monument as a starter. It was fifty stories tall, with eighteen steps to a story and about eight inch steps. It took us about ten minutes to go up the steps. The view was superb. We came down and made it back to the hotel just in time for room-check.

Our Potomac boat ride to Marshall Hall Amusement Park was one of the most enjoyable evenings in Washington, D. C. The classes danced to the music of the "Cliques" for twenty miles each way.
