Editorial

AS MY DUTIES END by Kathy Shellman

This being my final editorial, I feel I owe thanks to various people. I would like to thank my readers who at certain times complimented or criticized my articles. Naturally, I took pride in being complimented, but as any editor knows, criticism is the magic ingredient in the recipe for praiseworthy literature.

This position I have held over the past year was to me indeed an honorable one. I believe it was a great experience, being able to put my opinions to press. Not only that, I also learned a great deal. When the time came for editorializing each week, I often found it necessary to consult various weapons of reference for ideas and ways to develop my topics. Here, I learned by reading. Many of these things would have gone unnoticed if it were not for my job as editor. The job has given me encouragement to continue work of this type in my college years. I really wish everyone could be an editor just once in his life-time to see what I mean. It is without a doubt a wonderful experience. So one can see that I abscond from my duties, only to pass them on to another, with regret mixed with satisfaction.

I look back with chagrin on some of my work, feeling I did not do justice to some of my subjects. Many of them could use a shocking amount of amending. It is no wonder too, for many of them were done in haste and nearly late. Enter here the person to whom I owe most of my thanks, Mrs. Woodruff. She was the one who reminded me, suggested topics, corrected and saw to it that the deadline was met at the News Office each week. I am very grateful to her for her patience and kind help.

I extend good luck, wishes and congratulations to next year's editor, knowing that at this time

Good-bye to the Seniors by Connie Lewis

As my last official duty as Hi Herald Co-editor, I lead A. C. S. in a final "good-bye" to the Class of 1966. First things first; we sure are going to miss you!

The organizations like Choir and Band and Hi Herald and G.A.A. just won't be the same next year. It will miss a tiny bit of something that gave it a hint of "flavor" — a bit of enthusiasm, in essence — a senior of the Class of 1966.

We'll miss the excited gossip known only to the Senior Homeroom and the Class of 1966 — the eager bits of information thrown carelessly around the brimming corridors and the excited fervor of a new experience shared with the undergrads.

Most of all, we'll miss the Class of 1966 as individuals. Somehow during our school days, a part of "The Senior Class" has become a part of ourselves. One memory, one clever little quip, one shared experience belongs to each of us, the undergrads, from each individual of the Class of 1966.

Thus, as we say "good-bye" to our Seniors as they leave A.C.S. to make their places in the world, we want them to remember that they will never be forgotten. They will never leave the hearts of those who have supported them. "Good-bye to the Class of 1966"
