

Frank Walkley 148th Assembly District Report

The pledges of legislative leaders and individual legislators to protect counties against unanticipated Medicaid expenses in 1966 have been redeemed through a leadership agreement on "save-harmless" legislation, Assemblyman Walkley of Castile said today.

The agreement to introduce and pass this "save-harmless" legislation was a joint decision concluded by Governor Rockefeller and the Republican and Democratic leaders of both houses. The agreement will be embodied in a leaders' bill, reflecting the joint nature of the decision, Assemblyman Walkley said.

Governor Rockefeller has agreed to an appropriation of $2.5 million from which the counties will be reimbursed for unanticipated Medicaid expenses in 1966, the Assemblyman said.

The one-time appropriation is vital to the Assemblyman said. He explained that the Medicaid program became effective months after county government had approved their 1966 budgets, which did not anticipate the additional cost.

Assemblyman Walkley noted bipartisan support for the leaders' bill, but declared, "The primary motivation for the sustained drive which resulted in this agreement was initiated by Assembly Republicans. We not only made such proposals last year and in this session, we brought our demands to the attention of the public, the legislature and the Governor. It is our belief that without this Republican effort, the bipartisan support upon which this agreement is based would not have been possible."

Defeat of Farm Safety Bill

The Assembly voted down a proposal to establish an advisory council on farm labor safety, though farmers, in general, have a high rate of injury in pursuit of their livelihood.

The main objection to the bill was the provision authorizing the Board of Standards and Appeals to establish rules on farm safety. It is the Assembly's opinion that the Labor Department's familiarity with farm operations is essential.

Assemblyman Frank Walkley said he would like to see farmers organized on a voluntary basis through the existing Farm Safety Council.

With an increase in workers' compensation rates expected as of April 1, 1967, because of new broadened coverage of the farm group, the importance of stepped up safety measures around the farm may soon have a sharper impact.

Manufacturers of fertilizer have asked Assemblyman Frank Walkley to take a look at a 1966 law which establishes fees to be paid by distributors of fertilizer.

The Agriculture and Markets Law requires a distributor of commercial fertilizer to pay five cents per ton on fertilizer sold in the state. A minimum fee of $50 is charged regardless of the tonnage sold.

The fees collected are used by the Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture and Markets to enforce standards and regulations relating to the contents, sale and quality of fertilizer.

Complaints voiced come from the small operators, especially those producing specialty fertilizers in quantities under 1000 tons a year. Imposition of the fifty-dollar minimum fee means such distributors pay more than five cents per ton to the Commissioner.

"I am interested in reactions from fertilizer manufacturers throughout the State," said Mr. Walkley. "If the fertilizer manufacturers with small business are being treated unfairly, I think they should seek legislation to correct such a condition."

Proclamation By The Governor

Governor Rockefeller has proclaimed April 2 - 8 as "Family Doctor Week" in tribute to New York State's general practitioners, he said, "offset any trend toward fragmented and depersonalized medical care."

"Despite the increase in specialization in this era of complex medical science," the Governor said, "there are still more than 2,000 general practitioners in New York State. It is they who offset any trend toward fragmented and depersonalized medical care. It is they who serve as the vital unifying element in the overall spectrum of health facilities in a community."

"Although the family doctor may be called upon at any hour of the day, and although we deeply prize his compassionate care when illness strikes, we are inclined amid the pressures of normal daily life to forget the dedicated service he stands ever ready to provide."

Resource Conservation And Development Project

Southwestern New York's application for assistance in developing a Resource Conservation and Development Project is one of the best proposals in the United States," Rep. Charles E. Goodell said.

The application presents an inventory of the natural resources in Allegany, Cattaraugus and Chautauque Counties and seeks a grant to develop plans to manage and develop these resources.

The Congressman has been in contact with officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture on behalf of the application.

Rep. Goodell said the Department of Agriculture received the application on December 17, 1966 and it has been circulated to other Departments for review and comment.

The Congressman said he was informed it appears to be a very good application and is quite complete. The report to Rep. Goodell was made by John A. Baker, Assistant Secretary.

The Congressman said he intended to push for final approval and funding of the application.
