

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ralph A. Allen, Publisher
The Andover News,
Andover, New York.

Dear Mr. Allen:

Millions in dollars are being spent to discover a cure for cancer! Up to now, very little has been accomplished to save the lives of sufferers. Numerous fakers are rampant duping affected victims. The slaughter numbers far greater from cancer than casualties reported in the last three wars!

Why not delve into the question of what causes cancer? I have for several years been searching in libraries, reading medical books written by scientists of renown, examined writings distributed through medical associations, and believe I have discovered one chief cause of cancer. However, no medical practitioner or medical association member will admit to. They harbor an inclination to evade a direct answer, so I have found by letters.

After much research, I contend that most cancer cases have developed through the almost continuous use of aluminum cooking utensils and aluminum foil. Cooking or baking foods wrapped in aluminum foil and boiling acid fruits and vegetables in aluminum utensils dissolves minute particles of the poisonous metal to discharge and mix with the foods. Using this method of cooking and baking permits a build-up, over a period of time, and eventually is sufficient to create a malignant condition.

One doctor emphatically states in a book he has written, that any kind of food cooked in aluminum will injure or ruin the tonsils, because such food is poisoned by the aluminum. Clinical experience by some medical experts has proven that aluminum-ware in a kitchen is a "Kitchen Curse". This statement is contained in a biography written by a well-known doctor who, in fifty years, diagnosed over 225,000 persons.

I contend that many advertisements placed before the public eye today, especially those of prominent makers of aluminum foil, who recommend using the sheet aluminum to enfold meats, poultry, potatoes, etc., while baking, are daily contributing to the cause of death of many people who harbor and collect minute specks of poison after regularly partaking of such foods, prepared in such metal to contaminate it and thus gradually poison the body blood cells.

To a layman, knowing, through searching, that aluminum is an has been manufactured from a basic ingredient, that of Bauxite and other substances. Bauxite in particular is a highly poisonous mental element. Chemical analysis by an upright laboratory should be able to prove these statements. With all sincere wishes, I remain, Ed. Note — We also received several other letters to the Editor including one from Norma DeRemer and Rita Dixon.

We agree with the latter two mentioned that they are entitled to their own beliefs and opinions —but since they did not conform to the standards set up in our policy that has been stated yearly —we are not publishing them.

Furthermore, we do not believe that it is in the best interest of the school and community to prolong something that should have "finis" written on it.

We have clearly stated what we believe! We have defended our beliefs to the proper authorities. We firmly believe that our mission has been accomplished. Now the matter should be dropped! Period.

Proclamation

By The Governor

Governor Rockefeller has designated April as "Cancer Education Month" in a proclamation appealing for the continued public support he said "is vital so that intensive year-round additional activities can be maintained to reduce cancer's toll."

Citing an estimated 60,000 new cancer cases in New York State this year and the "grim toll" of more than 38,000 who will die of the disease, the Governor said:

"There are some 1,400,000 Americans alive today cured of cancer. Only a few years ago, one cancer patient in four was being cured. Today, it is one in every three victims. With the tools and knowledge available right now, this figure could be reduced to one in two if more people visited their physician at the first appearance of any of cancer's seven warning signals."

"Much is being done in our State by dedicated and devoted medical scientists, physicians, voluntary health agencies and public health departments to combat this disease. Because cancer when detected and treated early is curable continued support of the battle against this dread disease by the citizens of our State is vital so that intensive year-round additional activities can be maintained to reduce cancer's toll."

This striking pose sets off one of the most fantastic fist fights in the history of film — a mis-match featuring the Mountain Ox (Mike Mazurki) versus "Bullwhip" Griffin (Rodney McDowall), in Walt Disney's "The Adventures of Bullwhip Griffin." In Technicolor, the western spoof also stars Suzanne Pleshette, Karl Malden, Harry Guardino, Richard Haydn and Byron Russell. "The Adventures of Bullwhip Griffin" is to be showing at the Babcock Theatre from Friday through Tuesday evenings with a matinee on Saturday.
