State Report On

Motorcycle Accidents Albany, June 22 — A typical motorcycle accident is a car-cycle motorcycle accident is a car-cycle crash at an intersection.

The Department of Motor Venicles learned this in a study of 200 motorcycle accidents that occurred in New York State last May. The study is part of the Department's effort to stem the rapidly increasing number of cycle accidents. Last year 5,275 cycles were involved in accidents in New York — 184 per cent more than in 1964. And 4,962 motorcycles were involved in personal injury accidents.

The study revealed that:

In 131 of the 200 accidents, the collision involved a motorcycle collision involved a motorcycle with a car or a truck. Cycle collided with cycle in five additional of these two-vehicle collisions, cases.

Of these two-vehicle collisions, 87 were right-angle collisions at intersections, parking lot entrances or driveways. A cycle hit a car in 62 cases, and a car hit a cycle in 25.

There were 31 rear-end collisions. The cycle hit the car in 18 the car hit the cycle in 9, and a cycle in ta nother cycle in 4.

There were 11 sideswing accidents. In 7, a car hit a cycle; in, a cycle hit a car, and in 1, a cycle struck another cycle.

There were four head-on collisions, and three cases in which a car backed into a notorcycle.

Analysis of the manner in which the car cycle accidents occurred showed that one vehicle "cat out" another in 03 of the 136 collisions. A car cut off a cycle in 52 cases and a cycle cat off a car in 11.
