To Pinch Fat At State Fair

The "scientific pinch", a promising method for determining the percentage of body fat, will be demonstrated at the Cooperative Extension exhibit at the 1967 State Fair.

"Controlling Your Weight" is the theme of this home economics exhibit, aimed at helping fairgoers understand how food, exercise and heredity influence weight.

"Persons who understand the many factors affecting weight are in better positions to make intelligent decisions on how to achieve and maintain a sensible body weight", said Prof. Ruth N. Klippstein, N. Y. State College of Home Economics, Cornell.

"Height-weight tables have long been used as general guide to judge acceptable weights for adults", Prof. Klippstein said. "Soon we may add the 'scientific pinch'. By simply measuring the thickness of the fat pads lying over the triceps muscle of the upper arm, we may have a way to measure how much excessive weight is due to excessive fat. Specially designed calipers are available to make this measurement."
