Today's world is a busy world

Today's world is a busy world with things happering every moment in the fields of world affairs, science and the arts. However, we are not immune to these things of other places as well our ancestors. Now, right in our own home, we can actually watch history being made.

The age of television has come upon us and we can now be at Cape Kennedy seeing an Apollo Saturn recket lift itself from the earth's gravitation, or place ourselves in New York for the World Series. How often have you heard the comment that one can see a football game better on television than being right there. Why, even the color has been duplicated!

During the latest Israle Arab crisis, the United Nation proceedings were broadcast and one could watch the world situation being handled by the diplomats of the member nations.

being handled by the diplomats of the member nations.

Today, with the "bomb", the Vietnam war, and other continually threatening forces, we can not be without the constant aid of television to tell us the very latest developments

Senior Interview

Gayle Clark is our V.I.P. of this week. Gayle is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Clarke. She was born April 16, 1950. She has one sister, Mrs. Shiela Sny-der Gayle's major is in business. Some of her activities are: Band, four years; choir, three years; orchestra, five years; pep band, one year; Hi Herald, four years; G.A.A., four years; Library Council, one year; and Red Cross, four years. She is also a member of the Yearbook Staff. Gayle participated in the junior play as "Tootie" and in the senior play. Gayle's plans for next year include hopes of attending Olean Business Institute.

From the students of A. C. S. we wish her the best of luck.

The Problem Corner

Dear Eenie and Meenie,
I'm in seventh grade and with Basketball games starting, naturally, I'd like to go. My parents tell me that I'm not old erough, but all my classmates go and seem to enjoy themselves. Don't you think I should be allowed to go."
"A Basketball fan"

Dear "Fan".

Our answer depends on what you intend to do once you go to the basketball game. Perhaps your parents feel that you are not yet responsible enough to behave well at the game. If this is the case, you will have to show them that you can be trusted.

Simply because your classmates are going is not a good reason for you. Too often this is used as an excuse to encourage parents to "give in". However, if you are genuinely interested in basketbali, we feel that you should be allowed to go and show some good, old, school spirit!

Have Fun!
