GIRL SCOUTS

Mrs. David Coltrane of Painted Post, and Mrs. Louis Waterstraat of Hammondsport have been selected to serve on the staff for "Discovery 68" at Camp Drum this summer. 800 Senior Girl Scouts and 9th Grade Cadette Scouts will be living together out-of-doors from July 18 - 29. Their days will be flexible and unstructured helping to create a climate in which each girl can work to achieve her individual goals, and be a responsible participant in her patrol and troop.

Mrs. Coltrane, long an active Girl Scout Volunteer in Painted Post and the Southern Tier Girl Scout Council, will be a Roundup Hostess, whose job it will be to welcome staff, campers, visitors, and special Roundup guests.

Mrs. Waterstraat, Hammondsport Senior Troop Advisor, will be a troop advisor at the encampment. It will be her responsibility to guide the troop in all of its activities, she is the liaison between the troop and the other Roundup activities.

Mrs. Waterstraat is Neighborhood Coordinator for Hammondsport and has been nominated for election to the office of First Vice-President of the Southern Tier Girl Scout Council, Inc., at the Annual Council Meeting, May 1, 1968.

Sixteen Girl Scouts of the Southern Tier Council will be, also, attending "Discovery '68" in July. A part of their preparation for this opportunity is the Heritage Trail Bus Trip, April 17, 18 and 19, which will take them thru Allegany and Steuben Counties discovering their Council's history and identity.

Wellsville Airport Funds Win FAA Approval

Funds have been allocated by the Federal Aviation Agency towards the proposed new Airport for Wellsville.

Supervisor Wayne Feeman received a joint announcement from Senator Jacob Javits, Senator Robert Kennedy and Congressman Charles E. Goodell that the FAA has allocated $290,400 to the Wellsville Airport project.

"With the allocation of the federal fund, the Wellsville Town Board will press vigorously for approval of state funds" Supervisor Feeman said.

Board members had been assured last February by state officials that the town's application for $256,762 from the state for the airport project would be included in the 1968-89 budget.

The next steps by the board include a series of public informational meetings and preliminary engineering survey on the 300-acre on Niles Hill, the proposed site of the new airport.

The Wellsville Town Board, with officials of local industries have been meeting with federal officials in Washington pressing for funds to re-locate the Wellsville Airport from its site on the Bolivar Road to a larger site in the town to enable airport facilities to be enlarged to accommodate the larger-type planes being used by business and industrial firms throughout the country.

Carillon Bells Will Be Heard Again In Alfred

In order to integrate the Davis Memorial Carillon with the daily life of Alfred University students and the community of Alfred, a group of carillon players has been selected and are preparing program material.

The bells will be heard each afternoon from 5:30 to 5:45 on School days and on Sunday from 2:09 - 2:30 p. m.

Five women and one man were chosen at the initial tryouts on April 4. They are now working on repertoire to be performed, practicing on the studio console replica under the direction of Dr. Melvin Le Mon, chairman of the University music department.

The first program since the death of Dr. Wingate, who was University carillonneur for many years, was held Tuesday, April 16, with Miss Jane Richardson, a senior music major at the tower console.

Weight Signs Not Needed On Trucks

Owners of commercial motor vehicles no longer need display the weights and capacities of their vehicles, Motor Vehicle Commissioner Vincent L. Tofany said today.

An amendment to the Vehicle and Traffic Law, passed recently by Legislature, eliminates the requirement to post the unladen weight of the vehicle weight of the vehicle loaded, and maximum gross weight.

Managing Your Money
by Edward M. Donohue

Your Will

If you die and leave no will, you are said to have died intestate. In effect the state in which you live makes your will. Your property is distributed in accordance with fixed provisions of the state law. No matter how small or large your estate, not leaving a will may cause much trouble and inconvenience for your survivors.

Take the case of a married couple with one young child. All their worldly possessions add up to $18,000. The young husband dies suddenly - leaving no will. Under New York State law, the widow receives only one-half of her husband's estate, while their only child gets an equal share. But since he is a minor, a guardian has to be appointed by the probate or surrogate's court. Even when the mother is named guardian, she's anything but a free agent in the handling of the child's money. She has to provide a bond; she's under constant supervision of the court; she must file a periodic accounting. It's an expensive and cumbersome procedure, that can be avoided by a properly drawn will.

An inexperienced person may spend too much time doing the job inadequately. If you name your wife as your executor (men die on the average of seven years before their wives), you may wish to name your local bank or trust company as co-executor, to insure trained follow-up of such involved matters as probating the will, settling the estate, meeting claims, providing for estate taxes, selling, investing and reinvesting the assets and filing an accounting with the court.

If you die without leaving a will:

- * Your family may find itself unnecessarily involved in certain court procedures.

- * Your knowledge of the property you own and your advice as to its disposition cannot be passed on. It dies with you.

- * You lose the privilege of naming your executor, and this may be a costly loss.

- * You lose the privilege, afforded by laws in most states, of naming a guardian for your minor children. This is vital, particularly if your wife should not survive you.

- * In some instances, if there is no immediate family, your failure to leave a will may result in the passage of your property to persons in whom you have no particular interest - or even in its "escheat" (transfer) to the state.

- * Settling your estate is likely to be more complicated and may prove more costly.

- * You lose the opportunity to minimize estate and inheritance taxes. This can often be done by a planned will.
