Mrs. Jean Herrington, a former Home Economics teacher at the Greenwood School, has been employed as first grade teacher. Mrs. Joyce McCawley will teach kindergarten the first part of the year.

The cost of school lunches for the start of the school year has been set for 25c for grades K-6 and 30c for students in grades 7-12. Ice cream is included on the menu once each week and will be available at other times at 10c per serving. Extra milk is available at 4c per 1/2 pint serving during the lunch hour or at the milk break in the grades. Milk tickets may be bought on a weekly basis at 5 tickets for 20c.

Publisher Offers 4-H Scholarships

Successful Farming magazine, through the Edwin T. Meredith Foundation, has again offered two $800 scholarships to college freshmen who are current or former 4-H Club members. This marks the seventh straight year of the publishers' 4-H support, according to the National 4-H Service Committee.

To be eligible, candidates must have completed a minimum of three years in 4-H, meet scholastic and other requirements designated by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Applications will be reviewed early in November, and winners announced during the National 4-H Congress to be held in Chicago the first week in December. They will be among nearly 300 teenagers to receive 4-H educational grants from private sources.

11,300 Permits Issued For Spring Turkey Season

Final results are in on New York State's first spring turkey season and judging from responses to questions answered by sportsmen, the hunt was very enthusiastically received.

The hunt was held from May 6 through May 11 in Chautauqua, Cattaraugus, Allegany, Steuben and Chemung counties with anyone possessing a small game license eligible to participate by applying for a special permit. 11,300 permits were issued. Only bearded turkeys could be taken and daily hunting hours were only from sunrise to 10 a. m.

Information contained on 7,260 questionnaires returned by sportsmen has been analyzed by the State Conservation Department working in cooperation with the IBM computer section at St. Bonaventure University. The survey provided these facts:

The reported kill of 122 birds indicates that 2.3% of the hunters were successful. 1,449 (27%) reported sighting a bird. Of these, 398 or 7% of the total hunters shot at turkeys. It is believed that because of the inexperience of the hunter and the wariness of the turkey, many of the sightings were made at great distances. Some credit should also be given to the majority of hunters that must have resisted temptation to shoot at birds on which they could not distinguish a beard.

Of the 5,282 applicants that actually hunted, 2,087 or 40% stated that they used calls in hunting. Of the hunters that actually oagged turkeys however, 73% used turkey calling devices in their hunt.

New York City and Long Island were represented by 51 applicants, Pennsylvania by 22, New Jersey by 15, Ohio by 4, and Florida by 2. As might be expected a sizable number, 2,261 or 31%, came from the five counties within the hunt area. 35% came from Erie County and 12% from Monroe County. 41 of the 55 upstate counties were represented.

number of hunters afield related to the number of birds taken by county:

County	Hunters	Birds Taken
Cattaraugus	1842	33
Allegany	1848	23
Steuben	1181	23
Chautauqua	351	10
Chemung	100	3
Hunt Area Unknown	116	0

Only one banded bird was taken during the hunt. That turkey was banded in January 1963 at which time it weighed 11 lbs. 1 oz. When taken during the 1968 spring hunt, it was about 6 miles from the trap and release site, and weighed 24 lbs. 3 oz.

The degree to which the weather affected the hunter and his success can only be estimated. From observations in the field during the entire week, the only weather condition that seemed to affect hunting was the wind. It was noticed that because of wind, the gobbler sounded near, than far away and sometimes his call was lost entirely.

The Conservation Department report prepared by personnel at Region 2 Headquarters in Olean concluded by saying "Regional personnel involved were unanimous in feeling the spring hunt was successful. Comments received from hunters in the field and written comments to the Regional Office after the hunt were very close to 100% in enthusiastic support of the hunt. It is difficult to remember any program the Department has been involved in within Region 2 during recent years that has been so well received by the public."

The report noted that this enthusiastic response indicates a probable increase in the number of hunters participating in any future spring turkey hunts.
