

Open Burning To Be Curtailed

Intensification of the New York State Health Department's efforts to curtail open burning has resulted in the state health department refusing to issue permits for open burning out of the state has been announced by Dr. Hollis S. Ingraham, state health commissioner.

Dr. Ingraham said the state department has directed all city and county health commissioners, district health officers, and regional health directors to report on the status of refuse disposal areas in their jurisdiction.

Reports will be due by Nov. 1, 1968, on disposal facilities in four categories: (1) those near and visible from state and federal highways; (2) those known to be a source of valid air pollution complaints; (3) those in violation of a local air pollution law; and (4) those in areas where state-funded comprehensive solid wastes planning studies have been authorized.

Reports on all other disposal area burning violations will be due Jan. 1, 1969.

Under existing enforcement procedures, open burning has been reported at 127 of the 736 refuse disposal areas in the state. Some of the violations have since ended by voluntary compliance. In 32 cases where burning was not stopped voluntarily, public hearings are pending. As the result of earlier hearings, 21 "stop-burning" orders have been issued. Because of alleged violation of such orders, three cases were turned over to the New York State attorney General.

Everything we did was so exciting and interesting that I won't forget it in a long time. We had two women cooks, who sure knew how to make the food taste good away from home.

Turkey Season Permits Accepted Sept. 19 Thru Oct. 9

Hunters in search of the elusive wild turkey will have an opportunity to test their skill during the Eastern New York wild turkey season which runs from October 7 - 13 in southern Delaware County.

The State Conservation Department reminded hunters that a free, special permit is required in addition to a 1968 - 69 small game hunting license. Applications for a permit will be accepted from September 19 through October 9 by mail or in person. Correspondence should be addressed to: Regional Game Manager, New York State Conservation Department, Stamford, N. Y. 12167. An applicant must submit his name, address including zip code and his 1968 - 69 small game hunting license number.

The Conservation Department advised hunters to take special note that the area for this year's hunt is different from last year. Hunters applying for the special turkey permit will receive a map showing this year's hunt area. The best wild turkey population is located here and 13 of the 19 birds taken last year came from this area. Last year the rest of Delaware County and Greene, Otsego and Schoharie Counties were included but hunters reported either no success or very low success in these locales. In an effort to bolster the turkey population wild turkeys trapped in Western New York have been stocked in several Catskill areas and should be given several years to increase before hunting is allowed.

Permits and an attached questionnaire must be returned to the Department's Stamford Office following the close of the season. Hunters who have been able to outwit the wary gobbler are also required to send in one lower leg of the bird so the age and sex of the turkey can be determined.

1,205 permits were issued for last year's hunt. 796 hunters actually hunted with one in 42 coming home with a turkey.

The 1968 hunt will be the sixth consecutive wild turkey season in the Catskill region of the state.

News That's Print To Fit

Say folks! Hasn't this been a beautiful summer that is really worthy of going down in the record books. And so far, our Autumn weather has been beyond reproach. Think of it - here it is almost the last of September - and we still haven't had an area-wide killing frost yet. Yep, here in Andover we have had a couple of frosts that have touched things up a bit in spots - but we still saw some beautiful roses only yesterday that came from a local flower garden.

So-o-o, as Shakespeare said: "gather ye rose-buds while ye may, for there may come a rainy day."

Which leads us up to our Editorial this week. With rainy fall days in the offing, wet slippery leaves on sidewalks and streets - etc., we try to preach a little safety for motorists and pedestrians alike. However, when we come to the rule of staying within the crosswalks and crossing streets at the end of crosswalks - we seem to hit a dead-end, or blank wall. How can we preach these safety rules to the school children, when there aren't any guide-lines to follow?

In fact, we can't recall that the Streets and crosswalks have been marked off since Fay retired from the Streets Department. If we are wrong, we will certainly be glad to stand corrected - but it has been quite a long while - of that we are sure!

Sure, we have heard several people blamed for this. But, we ask you: "whose responsibility is it to see that this is done?" And, the only logical answer that we can think of is - "IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE MAYOR AND VILLAGE BOARD to see that this is done!" We don't care - who should do it - only, who does it! And, until it is done, we feel that the Village Board, as well as the Taxpayers, are negligent in not seeing that these safety precautions are observed. 10-47

And, while on the subject of "right - over night" we came across a problem that has been bugging one of our local businessmen for quite some time which is a little difficult to understand.

Neither the Weilsville Daily Reporter, nor we at the News Office, are knowingly guilty of such a problem - although at some time or other we may have inadvertently omitted someone's name from copy given us before it is finally put into print.

However, another daily paper that is circulated in this area has not been as co-operative thru what we understand as has been referred to as "their policy". Our local Funeral Director tells us that they have refused to use the names of close relatives in an obituary - if they are not from their own circulation area. And, this causes the problem of trying to explain to a bereaved family why brother, sisters, etc., names are not included in an obituary - as well as to other family members that call up about it.

This is also most difficult to understand when out of state family members even from Texas and the like, appear almost daily in some obituaries in this same paper.

From our standpoint of view - when we have a Newspaper policy - it applies the same to every one - or else the policy should be changed or dropped - to cover no one.

When we print an obituary, we try our level best to print it exactly according to the copy given us - which we assume is exactly the way the family wishes it. And, we can't understand why others can't do the same. 10-47
