

Gun Control Act Licensing Provisions

Starting December 16, applications for Federal licenses to sell firearms and ammunition must meet the requirements set forth in the Gun Control Act of 1968, John E. Foley, District Director, Internal Revenue Service, Buffalo said today.

Holdings of current firearm licenses will not be affected by the new licensing requirements until the license comes up for renewal but they must observe the new controls on the sale and transfer of firearms and ammunition.

Mr. Foley said the annual license fee to sell firearms and ammunition has been raised from $1 to $10. Pawnbrokers dealing in firearms must obtain a $25 license under the new law.

Dealers in shotgun and .22 caliber ammunition, previously not required to obtain a Federal license, must be licensed under the new law. However, by filing a license application on time, a dealer not previously required to have a license may continue to sell ammunition pending action on his application. The fee is $10 and permits a dealer to sell both firearms and ammunition.

To qualify for a license under the new law, a person must be 21 years of age, have a place of business in the U.S. and not be a convicted felon. Details on these and other licensing requirements may be obtained by contacting local offices of the IRS Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division.

The new Federal gun law was enacted to help State and local law enforcement agencies fight crime by placing controls on the interstate and over-the-counter sales of firearms and ammunition.

The importance of lime to crop production is an old story, but on many fields in New York State it is still the main limiting factor in crop yields.
