Tax Rules On Dependent Children

A $600 exemption may be taken for a baby born anytime during the year as long as certain tests are met, John E. Foley, District Director, Internal Revenue Service, Buffalo, announces.

One of the basic requirements for claiming a child as a dependent is that the taxpayer provide more than half the child's support for the entire year. If a child is born, or dies, during the year this support test has to be met for the months the child was alive.

Another test for dependency is that the child must either be related to the taxpayer or be a member of the taxpayer's household.

The child must also be a citizen or resident of the United States to be claimed as a dependent. The exceptions to this rule are for a child who is a resident of Canada, Mexico, Panama or the Canal Zone.

Mr. Foley said the requirement that a person cannot have income of $600 or more a year and be claimed as a dependent by another taxpayer does not apply to a child who is either under 19 at the end of the year or a full-time student for some part of five months of the year.

When the child is under 19 or is a full-time student his exemption could be claimed on different tax returns. The child would claim his own exemption on the return he was required to file and his parents would still be entitled to claim his exemption on their return.

The child is considered a full-time student if he is enrolled at an educational institution that has a regular faculty and curriculum and has a body of students

Tax Laws Require Good Records on Business Travel, Entertainment

If you plan to list a business deduction for travel and entertainment expenses be sure to have the records to substantiate these expenses, John E. Foley, District Director, Internal Revenue Service Buffalo, announces. Estimates of these expenses are not legally acceptable for tax purposes.

Mr. Foley said in many instances, a taxpayer should keep a diary or timely record as well as receipts and invoices to back up a travel or entertainment expense.

To substantiate entertainment expenses you must establish the amount of each separate expenditure except for miscellaneous items like cabs, phone calls, tips and meals while traveling away from home, which can be added together for each day. In addition, the date of the expenditure must be confirmed, the name of the person entertained indicated and the type and location of the entertainment described.

Mr. Foley said the taxpayer's records should also show the reason for the entertainment or the business benefit expected, the nature of the business discussion and the names, titles and business relationship of the persons entertained.

The detailed rules on how to deduct travel and entertainment expenses are given in IRS Publication 463. For a free copy, send a post card to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, 34 W. Mohawk Street, Buffalo, New York 14202.

Advertisement for NUTRITION A LA CARTE. Well, it's a New Year and perhaps a good time to adopt a new technique for communicating nutrition information to you. During the past year, I've stuck strictly to one topic at a time. But there's a host of nutrition information that can be presented in short, easy-to-remember form that doesn't need a whole column to explain. For this reason, every now and then this year I plan to vary the one topic columns with occasional columns we'll call "Nutrition A La Carte." Today's column is an example of what I mean: In general, adult men are likely to have better eating habits than women. Mothers are prone to suggest their own meals while tending the family, or because they are more conscious without understanding the basics of figure control. Mothers need an adequate, balanced diet just like the rest of us, perhaps more so. If you are not overweight, you to it think you can't change. Physicians are warning that it is much easier for people to control their weight when they get fat than to reduce it. It is also possible that your own weight is being affected by a habit you've picked up. Of all our ailments, teenage girls seem to have the most eating habits. Many studies show they are more conscious and apt to dip or nibble on something when they're bored. Crank diets should be avoided. These diets should be avoided. Percent fatness of the body is important factor in determining...
