Exercise Common Sense

In the Spring, a young homeowner's fancy turns to—repairing the leaky roof—replacing gutters and leaders damaged by snow—seed catalogues—working the heating plant and a host of other items that have been held in abeyance until the Spring thaw sets in.

abilities or skills—just for the exercise. If they exercise they want—they should exercise caution.

If the repairs or alterations require the services of a skilled craftsman or mechanic, don't undertake them. Too many do-it-yourselfers have spent twice the amount of a repair job by tackling it themselves and then having a mechanic undo their handiwork in order to do the job properly.

Then, too, there is always the element of risk attached to doing unfamiliar work. Medical and hospital bills will more than offset any possible savings a homeowner might anticipate by attempting such projects.

Don't let the weather catch you off guard. Get your heating system checked and serviced now. Get your furnace serviced now. Get your hot water heater serviced now. Get your air conditioning serviced now. Get your roof serviced now. Get your gutters serviced now. Get your leaders serviced now. Get your heating plant serviced now. Get your boiler serviced now. Employ a reputable repair service or contractor who has been in business for some time. If you don't know of one, stop in at your local bank and ask one of the men to recommend several. Contact them for estimates on the work you wish to have done. Listen to their suggestions and advice because what you might consider a minor repair could be a warning signal of more serious trouble.

Have the contractors or repair service submit a written estimate of the cost as well as a detailed description of the work to be done. Here is where your local bank can be of further assistance. If the cost of the work to be done will strain your budget, arrange for a property improvement loan. It is a convenient way to spread the cost of home maintenance over a period of time at a relatively low cost.

The most valuable single asset the average person has is his home. It should be maintained and improved. But he should not attempt to do it himself. He should hire a professional to do it for him. He should not attempt to do it himself. He should hire a professional to do it for him. He should not attempt to do it himself. He should hire a professional to do it for him.
