Giving Thanks

How was your Thanksgiving vacation? Mine was most enjoyable! It's strange that we still remember to honor such an old custom in a world filled with so many new philosophies.

It seems that in our world today, we never have time for such things as tradition. I guess the world isn't so bad after all. Most of us still eat the traditional turkey, cranberries, and pumpkin pie for Thanksgiving dinner.

Today, too, man can be thankful for several things, most of which he takes for granted. He seems to think that he can thank the Lord on Thanksgiving Day and every Sunday in Church, and that should be enough.

Adults always seem to realize this, but teenagers seldom do. Maybe it's because adults have experienced hard times and they know what it's like to make the best of what they have, no matter how small it may be.

Purple And White

by Jim Howland

This year Andover has a new J.V. Coach. His name is Mr. Lloyd Fuller and he teaches the fifth grade. This is his first year of teaching and his first year of coaching.

Mr. Fuller is a graduate of Scio Central School and Brockport State University. He played varsity basketball at Scio for two years. Also he competed in track while at Brockport.

All of us at Andover Central School wish Mr. Fuller and his boys the best of luck this season and in their opener Wednesday night.

Student Council Dance

by Tom Polmateer

On Saturday, December 13, the Student Council is sponsoring a dance to be held in the school gymnasium from 8:00 P. M. to 12:00 P. M.

The music will be furnished by the "Greenmuck Farm". The admission will be $1.50 per person. Come early! Stay late!

Senior Interview

by Joan Wightman

This week we will again expand our Senior Gallery with a portrait of Karl Earl Graves. Karl was born on July 2, 1952, to Mr. and Mrs. John A. Graves. He has three sisters: Juanita, Judy, and Janet; and one brother, Clayton.

Karl's activities include: three years in Camera Club, three years as Playground Monitor, and he is this year's Yearbook Editor. He played the role of "Mr. Brinkworth" in the Junior Play and "Uncle Chris" in the Senior Play. His hobbies include photography and traveling.

The students of Andover Central wish Karl the best of luck!

Downbeat

by Laurie Collins

Monday, December 1st, will present its Annual Christmas Concert. There will be performances by the various bands and choirs and a closing that will give everyone a chance to participate and renew their Christmas spirit.

The students and teachers have all worked very hard to make this program a success. Let's attend and give them our support!!!

Junior News

by Philip Pelton

The Juniors are pretty happy this week. Our Class Rings just arrived. Boy! Are they nice! All you Juniors who do not have your ring as yet, just bring the rest of the money and the yellow slip you received when you ordered your ring.
